Buckles Seeks Aid for Flood Victims

Personal concern for displaced flood victims in Texas' Rio Grade valley has prompted retired Sikeston businessman Harry A. Buckles to seek the aid of area residents in providing clothing for the thousands of Texans chased from their homes.

A flood relief headquarters has been established in a vacant store at 135 East Front Street next door to Voelker's Jewelry. Collection of clothing will begin at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and will continue for one week, according to Buckles, who says all sizes of serviceable clothing, blankets and quilts are urgently needed in the flood zone.

In connection with the drive Buckles says help also is needed at the collection center and any help from church groups, civic clubs or individuals will be appreciated. In addition to clothing Buckles says cash contributions will be accepted and forwarded to the proper authorities for the relief of flood victims. Checks should be made out to flood relief and may be mailed to Buckles at 309 North Prairie.

Stores having items they are willing to contribute also are asked to help, says Buckles who hopes to see the project grow into a community wide effort. He says it has been approved by city officials.

Buckles' concern stems from friendships and personal ties accumulated during 12 winters he and Mrs. Buckles have spent in that area. He formerly operated a Sikeston upholstery firm, which still bears his name.

Contacts with friends relating the seriousness of the flooding in the Rio Grande valley area covering more than 43,000 square miles with a population of approximately one million residents heightened Buckles' concern to the point of calling on fellow Southeast Missourians to help ease the strain on the victims.

The flooding has followed heavy rains of up to 30 inches in some area which accompanied Hurricane Beulah into the south Texas valley area. Reports reaching Buckles indicate that food and lodging needs of the flood victims are being met, but that there is a dire need of all types of clothing and bedding.

Information may be obtained by calling Buckles at GR 1-4045.

Rotarians Told to Aid Others

A double dose of humanitarianism was administered to the Rotary club last night by two speakers -- a Red Cross regional director and a supervisor of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation in three counties.

Dan Stango, St. Louis, the Red Cross executive, gave a campsule summary of his work since joining the organization in 1953 to illustrate the activities of the Red Cross, a United Fund beneficiary.

Chip Schmerbauch, the war on poverty supervisor, challenged Rotarians to become active in eliminating poverty and all the social problems it produces.

"It won't be done if it is left to someone else to do it," he said. "You are involved. You are affected.

"The government (federal) is big but it is still yours," he said. "You are affected by it."

Schmerbauch quoted the Rotarian magazine, Sylvia Porter, economist and newspaper columnist; Past President Richard Evans of Rotary International, and the Rotary slogan "Service Above Self" to emphiasize the importance of helping people in the community and for planning a better future for them.

He described the turmoil in DAEOC, the six-county Southeast Missouri anti-poverty agency which has been embroiled in controversy and a succession of directors, and predicted the region would lose two and a half million dollars of federal funds as a result of an evaluation of the program.

"You weren't interested is one of the reasons," he said.

"Too few of you practice service above self."

Declaring the purpose of the Community Action program was to help communities mobilize to combat poverty he told of some of the work and described some aspects of the need.

He also said that he wished that the money spent on paying 15 evaluators from the Kansas City regional office of the Office of Economic Opportunity to appraise the worth of the Bootheel program could have "gone directly to help the poor."

Schmerbauch said that Pemiscot, Mississippi, and New Madrid counties rank one, two and three in Missouri in the percentage of adults 25 years of age with less than five years schooling.

Discussing the work in the poverty war, he said by detecting malnutrition in a child he had been spared blindness; 199 hours of volunteer work had been put in interesting girls in joining the job corps, 747 children had been immunized against disease for the first time in Stoddard county, aid has been given the mentally retarded.

Stango, the Red Cross executive, told the club that the organization had 125 shelters in the Texas flood and that it was feeding 200,000 people daily.

His own assignments have been at the Philadelphia naval base to assist servicemen, Fort Knox, Ky., Japan, the Alaskan earthquakes, Louisiana hurricanes and Michigan tornadoes and at Michigan in promoting water safety. His work now is with blood banks.

He said that assistance in disasters always involves grants and never loans. The serviceman is given a loan for an emergency leave but if he is unable to repay it a grant.

There are now more than 200 Red Cross representatives in Vietnam, he said.

Norman Wenskay of the Morley club was a visiting Rotarian.

Emily Bruce entertained with piano music.

Floodwaters Reach Downtown Harlingen

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)— Rio Grande floodwaters surged into downtown Harlingen today and crept over roofs in some residential sections as runoff rainwater loosed by Hurricane Beulah thundered toward the Gulf of Mexico.

At least 200 homes, some of them in $50,000 class, were inundated. More than 5,000 persons, or one out of eight in this South Texas city of 41,000, were evacuated.

Damage estimates went past the $1 billion mark for devastation wrought since the gigantic storm, one of history's most powerful hurricanes, slammed into the Texas-Mexican coast Wednesday.

Some 20,000 persons throughout the 40,000 square-mile Texas region struck by Beulah remained in Red Cross shelters. Most rivers affected were receding today but many remained above flood stage.

The Nueces river at Calliham, for example, was at 30 feet today, 15 feet above flood stage.

Harlingen residents continued to flee as debris-laden water coursing in from the Rio Grande, 15, miles to the south, rose higher in the Arroyo Colorado.

The water level in the Arroyo was 43.10 feet above mean sea level shortly after dawn today, and rising about an inch an hour.

The death toll from Beulah hurricane-created turbulence and tornadoes spawned by the stood at 44, including 11 in Texas and 33 elsewhere in the big storm's wake from the Windward Islands through Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

The Red Cross said it was sheltering more than 25,000 persons in 17 cities, not counting 4,500 Mexicans who sought emergency shelter in private U.S. homes. The Mexican government counted 100,000 homeless on its side of the Rio Grande from Camargo 100 miles downstream to Matamoros, near the river's mouth.

The flooding became serious Sunday night after a diversion dam on the Arroyo Colorado broke, sending tons of water down that wide diversion channel.

TIMOTHY BRITT, left, eight-year-old Cub Scout of pack 40, sponsored by the Southwest Grade School Parent-Teacher Association, invites Paul David Swinney to join his pack on School Night for Scouting Monday.

Service Station Robbed, Attendant Takes Ride

NEW MADRID -- A lone gunman last night held up a service station and took the attendant captive for a half hour.

The attendant, Dewey Kiplinger, 37, or Marston, said the gunman pulled into Lee's Standard service station about 7:30 p.m. and told Kiplinger to fill the tank with gasoline.

The man got out of his car and went into the station to get a package of cigarettes but said he didn't have change. He asked Kiplinger to give him change, and when the attendant opened the cash register, the man pulled out a revolver, Kiplinger said.

The gunman told the attendant to give him the money in the register. He took $60-$80 in bills but didn't take the change.

The gunman then told Kiplinger to come with him. They drove south on U.S. 61, and the gunman turned right on highway 62, traveled a mile and let the attendant out, Kiplinger said.

Kiplinger said the gunman told him that he needed the money to help a girl who was in trouble.

Kiplinger ran to a nearby house and called the police.

The gunman was described as a white male, 35-40 years old, six foot one or two inches tall, 225-230 pounds and ruddy complexion. He was wearing a light blue mechanic uniform with a red and white name patch. He had been drinking, the attendant said.

Kiplinger said the gunman was driving a light blue or blue-green 1951 or 1952 Plymouth with a 1968 Missouri license plate. The last three numbers on the plate were 382.

The Johnson car struck the Fowler car in the side.

Today at 6:15 a.m. on highway 114, a half-mile east of Morehouse, Virginia Lutes, 26, Morehouse, apparently went to sleep while driving west in a 1960 Dodge station wagon and struck a bridge.

A railing was sheared and the car heavily damaged.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

We have asked the news room not to publish anything that Dorman L. Steelman, Republican State Chairman, or Delton Houchins, Democratic State Chairman, says concerning the Democratic or Republican parties.

They are both a big bunch of wind and what they say does not mean anything. What the candidates say for state offices is what is worth printing.

ASK YOUR OFFSPRING what character first made a household phrase out of the words, "What's up, Doc?" Now ask said offspring what character did likewise for, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself." Whoever would have thought the happy salutation of Bugs Bunny would cut a wider if not deeper stripe across the generations than that ringing inaugural cry of Franklin D. Roosevelt? Nobody.

SEPTOBER SONG

Thirty days hath September,
We won't go further than that.
One day August's easy to remember,
Next day you're holding your hat.

Since it's hard to read the omens
(The beach is sunny but, man, it's cold!)
We suggest some new cognomens,
Neo-months to clarify the old.

As we light from a dying August ember
An autumn flame we say, with awe,
"Gustember!"

And as we coolly turn the concept over,
We realize that summer's gone --
"Septober!"

October is a word to the wary
(Smile when you call us eponymous!)
And then, of course, there is Danuary,
Thank goodness for the euonymous!

PROFS GET LOW GRADES AT BERKELEY

In a book I wrote a few years ago, I listed the following almost certain outcomes of the kind of life-adjustment, progressive education we were conducting in practically all California schools;

1. Violence -- When an educational philosophy is almost completely permissive -- lets a child express himself at any cost, holds we must avoid frustrating or inhibiting the child in any way, then the result is indiscipline, discourtesy, and doing what comes naturally; this means violence, for a human animal is a violent one.

2. Immortality and obscenity: When we educators began replacing "Evangeline" and "Silas Marner" with "Catcher in the Rye" and James Baldwin's latest, we were just asking for what we have since gotten.

Some English teachers, fascinated with so-called "avant garde" literature, assigned it indiscriminately to children, and sowed a whirlwind of literary filth which has since grown into wholesale obscenity on the part of too many young people. Once you agree that there are no positive standards, no eternal truths, no lasting values in life or in education -- then anything goes.

3. Decline of personal morale: It was the new behavioristic psychology which warned educators and parents against any interference whatsoever with the divine right of the child to express himself -- even if this self-expression turned out to be at the expense of those around him and at the cost of school discipline generally. The outcome was predictable: the beards, the sandals; the long, lank hair; the general aura of unwashed disinhibition.

Education exists to take kids who are naturally disposed to nature in the raw, and show them finer things in life to aspire to. When you permitted an educational philosophy to take over in this State which holds that the words "the good, the beautiful, the true," are all meaningless -- that everything in life is relative -- why, you were just asking for what you got. And you certainly got it, did not you?

4. Contempt for law and the democratic process: This country has just as large a percentage of decent, law-abiding youngsters as it ever had. But the minority, who always got into trouble in he past, are getting into worse trouble now.

Why? The doctrine of "permissiveness" -- another name for the "easy way out" -- took over both the homes and the schools two decades ago, and produced the least repressed and worst behaved generation this country has ever seen.

For months now the entire country has been gazing unbelievably at Berkeley. In the sacred name of free speech, police cars have been bashed in and campus police held prisoners.

The university president resigned, and then unresigned. So did the chancellor. The board of regents, charged with determining university policy, became so palsied at the mere possibility of bruising some beatnik's constitutional rights that for months it was afraid even to bring the matter to a vote.

The people of California are outraged. No other word fits. Almost every letter I get these days winds up with: What's causing this Berkeley mess?

College kids have always raised Ned. But they have always been punished too -- until now. Now they get away with everything from kidnapping to outraging public decency, and nothing happens to them.

Why? Not due to the administration or the regents. But because of the professors. They're responsible in two ways -- directly and indirectly.

Too many of them openly or tacitly endorse disorderly, or even criminal conduct by their students. We got nothing but obstruction from those professors who controlled the different faculty seats and committees.

The professors fouled things up indirectly because the administration and some regents were afraid some professors would quit. Many of the regents are appalled at the prospect that several of their more prestigious professors may resign out of sympathy for the poor downtrodden filthy speech boys, deprived of their sacred right to bellow obscenities over the campus public address system.

Not me. I'm the only regent except Dr. Kerr who is a professional educator -- I know my own kind. And I know we leave a teaching job voluntarily only when offered a better job elsewhere. We leave it to better ourselves -- not to show sympathy for some loud-mouthed showoffs who are doing their best to disrupt the scholarly pursuits of a great university.

For every professor who will quit if we apply discipline at Berkely, two will quit if we don't.

"Why," you ask, "should intelligent, scholarly professors act in such strange ways." Well, one thing they're trying to achieve is control of the university by the faculty, instead of by the people. They're seemingly enamoured of the European way of running a university. Over there, you know, the professors are the university. They make the rules. They establish policy. They hire and fire each other. Here, we Americans have long held the somewhat quaint idea that a people's university ought to be run by the people, not by stray groups of employees or students.

The real fight at Berkeley is over who's going to run the store. Are the people, who spend hundreds of millions to subsidize and support the university, going to turn the institution over to the inmates?

Here's my recipe: (1) Put all discipline in the chancellor's hands and out of the faculty committees. (2) Tell the chancellor to do whatever is necessary and let him do it. (3) If the chancellor can't or won't do it, fire him and get one who will. (4) If any students or professors don't like it, remind them that they can easily go elsewhere.

After law and order have been reestablished, the job has just begun. There is a very real if somewhat incoherent grievance on the part of the sincere and sober students with which all of us should concern ourselves.

This is a loss of identity, erosion of self-respect, increasing inability to identify as an individual with a "multiversity" numbering about 28,000 souls. It's a kind of creeping facelessness.

One Berkeley undergraduate wrote me recently: "I sit in a lecture class with 600 other students and I'm No. 327. The professor's lectures are piped in electronically. I never see him. The tests are collected automatically, corrected automatically, handed back automatically. I engage in group activities, group health services and group recreation. I came to the university to find myself -- to learn how to become a person. Instead, I've become a number."

We're all to blame. We've let the university become a factory. We've been willing to let George do it.

Always and forever, we who cherish the proud title of Californians will keep a special place in our hearts for the Berkeley campus. To us, she and she alone will always be "Cal." She belongs, thank God, to us all. Too great to be defiled by fools. Too wondrous ever to be turned over by default to any others save ourselves along.

A PERSON IN PRAYER will inspire anyone who chances to see them. And so it was last Friday when we asked Father Buhman if we could take our wife into St. Mary's Church to see how beautiful its new decorations are. When we went in we saw a young man kneeling in prayer. Happily, our presence did not disturb him. He was alone in the church when we went in and as we did not stay long, he was still kneeling when we went out. We do not know who he was, but that doesn't matter. We have the greatest respect for him taking his problem to the Lord. - Shelbina Democrat.

SERVICES LIST OCS PROGRAMS

Recruiters for U.S. armed services are constantly seeking officer material, the Catholic Digest points out. Each of the services has enlistment programs for commissioned officers-to-be. There are ten enlisted men in the Army for every officer. In the Navy, it's 8 to 1; in the Air Force, 7 to 1, and in the Marines it's 13 to 1. Weeding out is merciless in the officer programs. It has to be.

All five services have officer-candidate schools, 10 to 23 week training courses followed by commissions for graduates. The Marines, Navy, Air Force, and Coast Guard require college degrees for OCS. The Army will accept OCS enlistments from enlisted men with only high school diplomas, but requires a degree for OCS enlistment from civilian life.

It is possible that the nation's independent enterprisers could make even more of a contribution toward establishing a favorable balance of trade for the United States.

An analysis of the first 25,000 respondents to the 1967 continuous field survey of the National Federation of Independent Business shows that 4 per cent are engaged in producing and selling for export. Projected against the 4,500,000 independent business enterprises, this indicates that some 180,000 smaller firms are in a field commonly thought to be the exclusive domain of the giants.

However, it also appears that for a small business to engage in export business, the financing problem of doing business long distance is greater than doing business domestically. The data shows that while only 43 per cent of the independent firms confined to domestic operations applied during the past year for a bank loan, 58 per cent of those engaged in export needed bank loan assistance.

Also, while it could be assumed that any small business engaged in export would be located on the seaboards, the fitures show the firms so engaged fairly evenly distributed regionally.

The following table shows the per cent of independent businesses in each region engaged in export, the percentage of those so engaged who have sought bank loans as compared to those firms in each region not engaged in export who applied for bank loans.

The business export is shown in the following order in percentages: Firms Exporting, Exporters Applied for Bank Loans and Non - exporters who Applied for Bank Loans.

New England	4	54	46
Middle Atlantic	6	57	36
East N. Central	4	56	42
West N. Central	2	50	48
South Atlantic	4	67	45
East S. Central	2	42	41
West S. Central	3	57	45
Mountain	2	87	49
Pacific	5	68	42

Presumably, these smaller firms engaged in export contribute entirely to the credit side of the balance of trade as unlike many of the big U.S. industrial complexes they do not operate plants abroad which also ship goods into the United States, as for example, the auto makers do.

However, financing of export business by the smaller firm is a substantial problem due to the length of time that working capital is tied up in the transactions.

A New England aluminum foundry reports that it is dropping its export activity as it is too cumbersome in relation to profits.

A Michigan firm engaged in making farm equipment employing ten people reports the foreign market is better than the domestic market, except that currency exchange and tariffs hurt. This firm believes enactment of the "plowback allowance" would be helpful.

A plastic manufacturer in Pennsylvania with 175 employees says that the Dept. of Commerce could make it easier for exporters and could also furnish more information. Ths same firm also feels that the Small Business Administration could cut a great deal of red tape in making loans.

A West Virginia firm employing 60 people engaged in export reports that when the minimum wage law came into affect, five employees had to be dropped because of price competition.

A metal fabricator in Florida reports that they have about reached their limit in effort due to the tightness of money and the shortage of skilled labor. This firm reports "government training programs in our area not producing fully trained men. The expectations these people have regarding position and salary are beyond reach. They are inadequately trained and come with the attitude they cannot be taught anymore."

From speciality foods to plowshares, the independent business engaged inexport trade is somewhat wary of what the future holds for this activity. And unlike many foreign nations, the American independent business is not given tax incentives for promoting an export business, nor is there any apparent concerted efforgby any government agency to make available to them sources of capital at inerest rates compatible with the problems of engaging in export.

The late President Kennedy shortly before his death was urging that special efforts be made to expand the export business, but before concrete plans were formulated he was assassinated.

Since that time, apparently, nothing has been carried forward to encourage American business, and especially the smaller firms, to either enter, or enlarge their export activities, although there seems ample evidence that these firms can find foreign markets for their products.

So far the data gathered indicates that the smaller American businessman is capable of, and willing, to enter into the export market with a minimum, if any, marketing help from government. What is apparently needed is a realistic approach to the application of income taxes to that part of a firm's business that is developed through exporting. There has been suggested that the export portion of a firm's business be excluded from all taxes, at least for a period of years until the overseas operations are on a firm footing.

OR ELSE

AN ELDERLY plutocrat went to a rejuvenating expert and asked: "Can you make me 25 again?"

"Yes," was the reply, "But it will cost you $500."

"Can you make me 18?" asked the plutocrat.

"Yes, but that will cost you $2,500."

"I'll have the operation for 18," was the reply.

Six months later the expert called for his money.

"Nothing doing," said the patient. "I'm under age and if you say I'm not I'll sue you for fraud."

WHAT A STORY TELLER

"THAT WIFE OF mine is a liar," said the angry husband to a sympathetic pal seated next to him at the bar.

"How do you know?" the friend asked.

"She didn't come home last night and when I asked her wheter she'd been, she said she had spent the night with her sister, Shirley."

"So?"

"She's a liar. I spent the night with her sister, Shirley."

"Sure, but he's still good at painting, etching and sculpturing."

The campaign to beautify the school parking lot flopped. Turned out those unsightly wrecks were the teachers' cars.

Doc. Duncan Says

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: Read an article that says the Supreme Court of California ruled 5 to 2 the people how a right to vote on the war. One judge held they only had a right to vote in municipal elections. That ruling would disqualify them to vote in State and National elections. That bird must be from Missouri.

Our forefathers provided us with the machinery to rub out any mistake we made in electing officials. Looks like if the people don't start rubbing out, they are gonna get rubbed out. Self defense and self preservation is the basic laws of nature. Seems like the people have lost control.

It may take some heroic measures to restore them to their constitutional rights, and since the conspiracy has no regard for the people's pocketbook, feelings, rights or what have you, any guy who takes the oath of office, then does an about face, then joins the conspiracy to cripple our constitution is an enemy of our nation and it's people and should be dealt with accordingly, immediately.

H.L. Hunt Says

STATE CHIEF JUSTICESSPEAK

The U.S. Supreme Court in recent years has returned numerous decisions which, whatever their intent, have had the effect of making it easier for criminals to escape the consequences of their wrongdoing. A resolution adopted by chief justices of the state courts at their recent conference in Honolulu is in glaring contrast to these decisions by a majority of the Supreme Court justices.

The resolution, adopted without dissent by the 45 chief justices attending the Honolulu meeting, took official note of the rising crime rate and the riots in our cities. Pointing out that 1967 has been a year of "unprecedented lawlessness and mob violence," the state justices declared the chief cause is "a lack of respect for the law and an utter disregard for its proper enforcement in the minds of a growing number of citizens. Furthermore, they suggested strongly that recent court laxities toward criminals, many of whom have been freed on technicalities after conviction, must be changed.

"It is as imperative," their resolution said, "that those who breach the law be punished as it is that the innocent be protected, and it is equally essential that it be demonstrated that the law-abiding citizen will receive protection of the law from the lawless as it is that guarantees will be afforded him who is accused of its breach." The chief justices then called for a reappraisal of laws and procedures which affect the work of police, prosecutors and courts. This resolution, truly judicial in nature, is recommended reading for justices of the U.S. Supreme Court. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a business writer never would know if he kept his eyes closed:

A small restaurant on Manhattan's Lower East Side does a big business selling "Oriental pizza". A nearby delicatessen offers "kosher Chinese food."

The people of Nantucket Island, the "little gray lady of the sea," do a thriving business making, bottling and selling "Rose Hip Jelly" to offislanders. The jelly is made from the buds of roses which grow wild on the island.

A tiny New York art shop advertises: "Original oil paintings $3— no forgeries here."

New York, which estimates it removes 4½ pounds of garbage a day for each of its 8 million residents, spends more than $130 million a year on garbage removal. It also estimates it collects enough refuse each year to fill the 102-story Empire State Building 15 times.

And the chairman of one of the nation's large can companies estimates that each year Americans toss out more than 48 billion cans (more than 250 a person), 25 billion bottles and jars (135 a person), and 65 million metal and plastic caps and crowns (338 a person.)

Souvenir spoons commemorating famous world's fairs of the past are sought avidly by some antique collectors. But with demand for the spoons so great, some of the collectors are getting out of spoons and into the less crowded field of souvenir forks.

There are better ways of making a living than bank robbery. The American Bankers Association says at least 53 per cent of the gunmen who held up banks in 1965 and 1966 were captured and drew sentences ranging from eight years to death, with 14 years the average.

Some 35 million copies of comic books are sold in the United States each month, with the bulk being read by those between the ages of 5 and 18. About 90 per cent of the books have 32 pages plus covers, and sell for 12 cents.

Apricots, originating in China, were carried from Asia to Greece by Alexander the Great. The avocado was cultivated by Central American Indians for hundreds of years before it was taken to California by the Spaniards. The artichoke, whose name comes from Italian words meaning "pine cone", was introduced into Louisiana by the French. The pharoahs of Egypt considered mushrooms a great delicacy and in ancient Rome they were regarded as the "food of the gods".

When Christopher Columbus came to America there were no cows, so he brought some on his second voyage in 1493 to the islands of the West Indies. Last year, more than 120 billion pounds of milk was produced in the United States. It takes 21.1 pounds of whole milk to make one pound of butter.

In 1956, it was estimated that only 10 per cent of this nation's adults had ever bought an airline ticket. In 1966, a survey estimated the figure had risen to 42 per cent.

Dealers are cashing in on the public demand for old street signs to use as home furnishings. The signs, usually purchased from a city as it replaces them, retail for from $20 to $40.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Pan American foreign ministers, meeting in Washington this week, have an opportunity to boost the prestige of the organization of the American states so that it may rival -- or even surpass--- the effectiveness of the United Nations. Or they can let it get bogged down in the slough of complacency again.

Which way they go will depend on whom they elect as OAS secretary general. They can elect another chairwarmer, as they have now, or another statesman such as Lleras Camargo, ex-President of Colombia, or Carlos Davila, ex- President of Chile. Both made the Pan American Union a powerful force for better understanding and peace.

Several excellent candidates are available for the secretary-generalship, including Walter Guevara Arze, brilliant Bolivian foreign minister, and Marcos Falcon Briceno, former foreign minister of Venezuela who helped pilot that country through one of its most difficult periods after the Perez Jimenez dictatorship.

However, the ex-President of Ecuador, Galo Plaza, has by far the most experience in handling world trouble spots. He has been drafted by the United Nations as a trouble - shooter in Cyprus, in Lebanon when President Eisenhower landed troops there, and in the Congo.

Quite recently Galo Plaza went to Haiti, another potential trouble spot, to try to head off trouble before it breaks. The confidential plan which he recommended to the OAS is now partially in effect.

What President Johnson and the Pan American Presidents he conferred with last April are resolved to do is to prevent riots and war before they come to a boil. Galo Plaza is skilled at this.

His chief handicap is that he was born in New York, studied at the Universities of California and Maryland. This makes him pro-USA in the eyes of Latin America. However, the government of Peru, which does not have diplomatic relations with Ecuador, has recognized Galo Plaza's usefulness and said it would not object to him as secretary general of the OAS.

HUMPHREY HUMOR

Vice President Humphrey was giving a luncheon for President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy and introduced Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island.

"I have a secret which I hope Senator Pastore will not mind my divulging," said Humphrey. "He was born Giovanni O. Pastore. But, being a good Democrat, he changed his name to John O. Pastore when he came of age.

"You see, if he had left the 'Giovanni' in there his initials would have been GOP!"

TEMPERAMENTAL EV

Sen. Everett Dirksen's now-I'm - for - him - now - I'm - not game is coming to a head with commissioner Carl Bagge, the man Dirksen recommended for the federal power commission but now opposes.

For five long months, the senior senator from Illinois has blocked Bagge's confirmation, even though it was Dirksen who originally persuaded the President to appoint him.

Today (Sep. 26), however, Bagge's name will finally be pried out of the senate commerce committee by chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., and will be sent to the full senate for final action.

Inside reason for Dirksen's opposition to the man he recommended is understood to be the commissioner's backing of the "power reliability" bill providing for inter-ties between power companies so as to prevent blackouts such as paralyzed New York state two years ago. Midwest power companies don't like the bill as drafted by the federal power commission.

PRESS AND MONOPOLY

Newspaper publishers may be in for an all-important decision when U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson in Southern California hands down his decision in the Los Angeles Times anti-trust case. He is expected to rule that the Times must sell the San Bernardino Sun, located in the Times circulation area.

In recent years many larger newspapers have acquired smaller newspapers, though most of them have gone outside their own circulation area. Thus the Philadelphia Bulletin has acquired the Santa Barbara News-Press on the West Coast, 3,000 miles away from Philadelphia. The Chicago Tribune has also acquired the Orlando Sentinel, about 2,000 miles away in Florida. The justice department sees no violation of the antitrust act in these purchases.

However, it took a different view of the purchase of the San Bernardino Sun by the L. A. Times because that meant a concentration of newspaper power in a relatively small, densely populated area.

This was why the L. A. Times was slapped with an antitrust suit. The decision by Judge Ferguson is expected to set newspaper history in the United States.

BRITISH COMPETITION

While American newspapers have diminished in number and news services have tended toward mergers, Reuthers, the British news agency, has invaded the American market with new and extensive coverage.

For the first time in history, Reuters is not relying on the Associated Press for domestic news coverage in the United States, but has established its own correspondents and bureaus from New York to the West Coast.

Reuters now serves 65 newspapers in the United States, and in these days of increasing news monopoly, plans to give American newsgathering agencies a run for their money.

Two arrangements of yellow spider mums, gladioli, and greenery were on pedestals on either side of the alter. The deep scalloped neckline dipped low in the back. Simulated pearls and sequins were embroidered on the front. Soft gathers across the back waist formed the fullness that swept to a swallow - tail chapel - length train. The controlled skirt was scalloped around the bottom of the gown and extended into the train. Her headdress was lace-covered petals outlined with pearls and accented with pearlized lilies of the valley. A shoulder-length bouffant veil of imported silk illusion was attached to the headdress. Her accessories were dark rose and her corsage was a pink orchid. Mrs. Putnam, the groom's mother, chose an ensemble of green imported lace with matching accessories. Her corsage was yellow cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. E. R. Putnam Sr. and Mrs. A. L. Waller of Sikeston, the groom's grandmothers, had corsages of yellow roses.

A reception followed in the education building. The table, attended by the matron of honor and the bridesmaids, was covered with a white cloth overlaid with yellow net and caught at the corners with silver streamers.

At the municipal airport where I work, a private airplane called the control tower: "Kansas City Tower, you might inform the TWA plane which is about to take off from the north end that the object near my position that looks like a rock is really a turtle on the runway."

TWA 707: Tower, we heard that transmission. Understand. One turtle, crossing runway.

Tower: Based on available pilot reports, turtle's course is oriented southeast, heading toward Gate Five.

TWA 707: Kansas City Tower, can you give us info on turtle's speed and estimated time of runway clearance?

Tower: Computer calculations indicate turtle's speed around 200 feet an hour - may be less in this quartering headwind. If present course and speed are maintained, runway should be clear in eight minutes.

TWA 707: Unable to wait due to fuel depletion. Will employ evasive action on takeoff roll.

Tower: Roger, TWA. Cleared for takeoff. Be on alert for wake turbulence behind departing turtle.

NATIONAL LEAGUE'S PARK of the baseball World Series is all set, even though the American League scramble probably won't be decided until the last minute. Busch Stadium, home of the pennant-winning Cardinals, will be jammed with more than 50,000 fans for the St. Louis Series games.

Angels Aim To Help...Someone

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The key to the American League pennant puzzle rests in the hot little halos of California's innocent-looking Angels. And don't they know it.

Bill Rigney's Angels ran right over Minnesota 9-2 Monday, dropping the Twins into a tie with idle Boston. Third-place Chicago, off Monday, is one-half game behind.

The ambitious Angels play the Twins again today and Wednesday and then finish the season with four games against fourth-place Detroit, which ran into Al Downing's four-hit pitching and lost 2-0 at New York. The Tigers are 1½ games behind with five to play.

In the only other American League game played Monday, Baltimore slipped past Washington 3-2. In the National League, San Francisco nipped New York 2-1 in 10 innings, Houston edged Philadelphia 4-3 and Pittsburgh shaded Los Angeles 2-1 in 11 innings.

"I don't care who wins it," smiled Rigney, surveying his club's steady diet of Minnesota and Detroit for the final week. "All I know is we were going to help somebody lose it." Then Rigney told how he prepared for Showdown Week.

"I rested Don Mincher, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop at Kansas City Sunday to get ready for OUR World Series. We can't win the pennant, but we can spoil it for the Tigers and Twins."

Fregosi and Rick Reichardt did most of Monday's spoiling against Minnesota. Each had three hits in the first four innings as the Angels rocked Jim Merritt and Dave Boswell for seven quick runs.

California nicked Merritt for a run in the first on consecutive singles by Fregosi, Richardt and Bubba Morton. Then Fregosi socked a two-run triple as the Angels scored three in the second.

Four straight singles by Fregosi, Richardt, Mincher and Jimmie Hall helped build a three-run fourth as California wrapped it up early.

The Twins chased California starter George Brunet in the fourth, scoring two runs on four straight singles, but Jack Hamilton stopped that rally and got credit for his ninth victory. Curt Simmons finished up.

Downing retired the first 11 Tigers he faced and allowed only one hit over the first six innings.

The Yankee left-hander also started New York's winning rally when he drew a third inning walk against loser Earl Wilson, 22-11.

He moved to second on an infield out and raced home on rookie Jerry Kenney's single. Then Mickey Mantle walked and Joe Pepitone singled Kenney across.

It was Downing's 14th victory, a career high. He struck out six and walked two. Al Kaline had two of Detroit's four singles against him.

Curt Motton's ninth inning single scored Brooks Robinson with Baltimore's winning run against Washington. Robinson was hit by a pitch opening the ninth and raced to third on Curt Blefary's hit.

The pennant race resumes today with California at Minnesota and Cleveland at Boston, and tonight with Chicago at Kansas City and Detroit at New York.

Ole Misss Tumbled

MEMPHIS, - In a football weekend that featured some astonishing upsets Memphis State University containly did its share. The Tigers, a two-touchdown underdog rocked Ole Miss 27-17 to get their season off to the best start ever.

Nearly every one of the 40 players who saw action for Memphis State had his big moment, but some of the more obvious stars were:

Nick Pappas, 190-pound tailback from Corning, N. Y. The speedy junior fieled an Ole Miss kickoff at his seven-yard line and raced 93 yards for a touchdown that put the Tigers ahead 7-3 at halftime. The kickoff return is a new MSU record.

Ricky Thurow, 175-pound sophomore quarterback from North Little Rock, Ark. The former prep All-America got his baptism against the Rebels and responded with a 24-yard dart to the end zone that produced the winning touchdown with six minutes remaining.

Bob Baxter, 185-pound senior wingback from Levittown, Pa. A seasoned veteran of two-years of college football warfare, Baxter turned in the single biggest play of his career when he fielded an Ole Miss punt and fled 75 yards for the touchdown that clinched the Memphis State victory. On the other side of the coin, he punted seven times himself, averaged 38 yards and the Rebels didn't have a single yard return.

Art Brumit, 205-pound junior linebacker from Kingsport, Tenn. With Ole Miss leading 17-14 and the Rebs' Julian Fagan back to punt late in the fourth period, Brumit broke through and nailed Fagan for a 13-yard loss. The Tigers scored the winning TD two plays later. Brumit turned in some other big plays, including a 25-yard runback of a pass interception.

Francis Winkler, a 230-pound senior tackle from Memphis. He showed why he made several pre-season All-America checklists with a tremendous all-round game that included 10 tackles and nine assists. "Winkler was just great," said Coach Billy Murphy.

Dale Brady, 200-pound senior wingback from Madison, Tenn., and Russell Denof, 185-pound sophomore tailback from Camden, N. J. They collaborated on a play that got the Tigers the ball on the Ole Miss two-yard line. The Rebels' Billy Jones fielded a punt, dropped the ball, started to pick it up and was knocked sideways by Brady. Denof jumped on the ball and seconds later the Tigers had an unexpectedly easy touchdown.

A NIGHT OF FIRSTS - Every one of the 50,414 spectators was aware that this was Memphis State's first victory over Ole Miss in 22 tries. But virtually unnoticed went the fact that it was also the first time the Rebels lost an opener under Coach John Vaught. Not since Vaught became coach in 1947 had the Rebs dropped their first game of the season. Nine times the opening victim was Memphis State.

WHO'S AHEAD? - The score changed hands six times in Saturdays night's game. Ole Miss scored first on a field goal. Then it was Memphis State 7-3, Ole Miss 10-7, Memphis State 14-10, Ole Miss 17-14, Memphis State 20-17 and 27-17.

Long runs were almost commonplace. The Tigers' Nick Pappas started things with a 93-yard kickoff return. The Rebs' Bo Bowen returned the compliment to the tune of 89 yards. MSU'S Bob Baxter found the new punt-return rule favorable with a 75-yard romp. After all that Rick Thurow's 24-yard jaunt for the winning TD looked like a plunge.

The Tigers set an NCAA record last year by allowing opponents only 1.1 yards per runback. Despite the new rule that keeps linemen home until the ball is kicked, Ole Miss had zero return yards on 10 Memphis State punts.

THE BEARCATS ARE COMING- Memphis State hopes to make it two in a row this week at the expense of Cincinnati. The teams kick off at 7:30 Saturday night at Memorial Stadium. The Bearcats have a new coach in Homer Rice, former aide at Oklahoma. Rice got off on the wrong foot is his opener. Losing to Dayton 27-13. The Memphis State-Cincinnati series got started last year with the Tigers taking a 26-14 win.

Back, Lineman Of The Week

Three players were selected as stars of Friday night's 27-0 football victory for Sikeston high school over Charleston.

Two defensive linemen were named, Riley Gross and Bob McCord. Terry Bryant was selected as the defensive back of the week.

Bryant, who wears number 21 started his first game of the season in the backfield and picked off one of the opposition's passes and was in on numerous tackles.

SHS football coach, Bill Sapp, overhauled his defensive backfield before last week's game and the change enabled the Bulldogs to check the passing combination of Charles Babb, who is tabbed as the top quarterback in the conference.

Bryant is an 145-pound junior and is listed as a right halfback on the roster.

Gross is a 175-pound junior and is listed as a fullback and wears number 33.

McCord, the only senior named to this week's star list weighed in a 192 pounds and is listed as a left end on the rost. McCord wears number 85.

Northern Battle Continues; Dexter Undefeated In South

Conference encounters highlight Friday night's high school football schedule for Southeast Missouri. Six of the eight games on tab will be in conference play.

As the area teams move into the fourth week of action only four remain undefeated, three in the northern division and Dexter in the southern division of the Southeast Missouri high school football conference. In the north, Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau Central and Sikeston boast 3-0 records with Bluff and Sikeston holding 2-0 conference marks. Cape has yet to open its conference schedule.

In the south, which was expected to be all Malden at the beginning, finds Dexter sporting a 3-0 seasonal mark with a 2-0 conference slate. The Bearcats set Caruthersville aside last week and moved into undisputed possession of the conference lead.

Of Friday's six conference encounters, three will be played in each division with the Cape Central Tigers and Chaffee the only teams in the northern and southern divisions respectively not seeing action with conference foes.

Cape, who has yet to tackle a conference contender this season is host to St. Louis county power Kirkwood at Houck field stadium while Chaffee takes on the Ilmo - Scott City Rams on the Red Devil turf.

Conference action in the north will center at Jackson, Sikeston and Charleston. Jackson will be host to John Brown and Company from Poplar Bluff while Sikeston meets the winless Kennett tribe on the Bulldog field and Charleston hopes to rebound from Sikeston's devastating whipping when it plays Perryville.

In the southern division, Maldren treks to Caruthersville, Portageville visits the East Prairie Eagles and Dexter Meets Hayti on the Indian's territory.

Portageville, a southern division member, is leading the district teams in scoring with a 104 points' offense. The Bulldogs opened their season with a rousing 64 point performance at Manila, Ark.

Poplar Bluff with 100 offensive points leads the north with Sikeston second and third overall with 75 offensive points.

Poplar Bluff has yielded only 13 points this season and Sikeston's surprising defense has given up only 14.

Chaffee leads the district in yielding the most points to its opposition, giving up 67 in three outings.

Charleston and Caruthersville who had failed to yield an opposing offense score until last Friday's encounters were hit for 27 and 20 points respectively and ended their undefeated play, both suffering conference setbacks.

The Bluejays of Herbert Marshall suffered their conference debut loss while Perryville and Kennett were handed their second conference setbacks against no victories.

Malden's injured signal caller, Scott Norrid, is expected to be back in action after sitting out last week's encounter with Gideon.

The waves southern conference hopes are on the line when they visit Tiger Stadium in Caruthersville Friday.

Malden must win to stay in contention with the division leader, Dexter.

Major Shake Down

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unexpected developments involving Houston, Michigan State, Alabama and Miami of Florida, among others, resulted in a wholesale shifting of positions from second to 10th in the latest Associated Press college football poll.

There could well be a scramble from top to bottom next week.

That's because the No.1 team, Notre Dame, faces 10th-ranked Purdue on the Boilermakers' field while runner-up Southern California tackles what appears to be an unusually-weak Michigan State team this Saturday.

The Spartans plummeted from third place all the way out of the Top Ten after being thrashed 37-7 by Houston. The Cougars took over the No.3 spot.

Alabama, tied 37-37 by Florida State, dropped from second to ninth place. Miami, upset by Northwestern 12-7, slipped out of the ratings. The Hurricanes were eighth a week ago.

Notre Dame, the 1966 national titleholder, maintained a solid lead in this week's pool of 41 sports writers and broadcasters on the AP's national panel. The Irish collected 31 votes for first place and 390 points on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for second etc.

Southern California's 17-13 triumph over Texas resulted in the Trojans' advancing from fourth to second and the Longhorns dropping from fifth to eighth.

UCLA, a 40-8 winner over Pitt, climbed from sixth to fourth. Georgia advanced from seventh to fifth after trampling Mississippi State 30-0 while Colorado moved up to sixth, a gain of three positions, by whipping Oregon, 17-13.

Nebraska, although idle, zoomed from 10th to seventh. Purdue replaced Miami in the rankings after defeating Texas A&M, 24-20 in its opening game.

In other games involving teams in the first 10 this weekend, Houston faces Wake Forest, UCLA takes on Washington State, Georgia meets Clemson, Nebraska plays Minnesota, Texas faces Texas Tech and Alabama plays Southern Mississippi. Colorado is not scheduled.

The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses and points on a 10-9-8-etc basis:

1.	Notre Dame (31)	390
2.	Southern Cal (4)	340
3.	Houston (6)	279
4.	UCLA	275
5.	Georgia	260
6.	Colorado	118
7.	Nebraska	79
8.	Texas	76
9.	Alabama	75
10.	Purdue	70

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has returned to the golf course— and nearly beaned a fellow player in the process.

Members of the Burning Tree Country Club in nearby Maryland said the President's first drive Saturday veered into an adjoining fairway and narrowly missed another golfer. A second drive was much better they said.

Johnson was in a foursome with Rep. George Mahon, D.Tex., Clark Clifford, a Washington lawyer; and his son-in-law, Patrick Nugent of Austin, Tex.

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP) — Sharron Washington, a recent cut by the Houston Oilers of the American Football League, checked in Monday to seek a backfield position with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League.

The 6-foot, 190-pound Washington played split end and halfback at Northeast Missouri State.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Center Earl Ingarfield ended an 11-day holdout Monday by signing a two-year contract with the Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League.

MONTREAL (AP) — Nine of the top 3-year-old pacers in North America will go to the post Sunday in the $27,300 Trans-Canada Pace. The field includes Nardin's Byrd, who was second in last week's Little Brown Jug.

WINNIPEG (AP) — The Winnipeg Blue Bomber of the Canadian Football League announced Monday the release of Marty Rosen from the University of South Carolina and the signing of Lou Confessori, a quarterback and defensive back who played on the taxi squad of the Washington Redskins last season.

New splendor in Chevrolet-built

'68 Chevelle Concours Sport Sedan

In addition to 14 models in the 1968 Chevelle line is this optional Concours Sport Sedan. This ultra-luxurious car like others in the Chevelle family features a new instrument panel, new lattice radiator grille, special interiors and exterior ornamental trim. The Concours Sedan is built on a 116-inch wheelbase, has special sound insulation throughout and concealed windshield wipers with articulated left blade. The new Chevrolet-built passenger cars will be on display September 21.

EXHAUST EMISSION CONTROL ON ALL MODELS

Exhaust emission control equipment, added for all engines on 1968 Chevrolets, consists of two different designs.

In general, for models equipped with automatic transmissions, emission control is achieved by a new Controlled Combustion System (CCS). It includes temperature controlled carburetor inlet air, special carburetor calibration and ignition timing changes.

Models with manual transmissions use an improved version of the Air Injection Reactor (A.I.R.) previously produces for California models. In A.I.R. air is pumped into the exhaust manifold and reacts with unburned gases to produce low emission levels.

ANTI - THEFT PROTECTION FOR ALL MODELS

New anti-theft provisions are included in a theft protection package for all Chevrolet models.

Included is a warning buzzer which sounds whenever the driver opens the car door and the key is left in the ignition in either the "off" or "accessory" position.

A vehicle identification number on the instrument panel is clearly visible through the windshield. There is vehicle identification on every engine and transmission and new ignition key and lock combinations.

BUCKET SEATS AVAILABLE ON ALL 6 CHEVROLET LINES

Bucket seats are optional on the Caprice Coupe and a "Super Sport" option on the Impala coupes and convertible in the regular Chevrolet line.

On Chevelle, they are optional on SS 396 and Malibu sport coupes and convertibles.

On Chevy II bucket seats are optional for the Nova coupe.

Bucket seats are standard on Corvette and Camaro models and on Monza models of Corvair.

GLASS REAR WINDOW ON CHEVELLE CONVERTIBLES

A glass rear window is introduced for 1968 on Chevelle convertibles. It previosly has been available only on regular Chevrolet convertibles.

SPORT MODELS NEARLY HALF OF TOTAL

Nineteen of Chevrolet's 41 models for 1968 are "sport models" . . . two- and four-door hardtops and convertibles.

This high percentage of sport models underscores their growth in customer popularity in recent years.

REAR STOWAGE FOR CHEVELLE WAGONS

Concealed rear stowage compartments -- popular on regular Chevrolet two-seat station wagons, are added in 1968 to all wagons in the Chevelle line except the base Nomad.

Chevrolet offers a total of 11 station wagons for 1968. . . seven in the regular Chevrolet line and four Chevelle wagons.

NEW CHEVY II OPTIONS

A stereo tape sound system and Four-Season air conditioning are available for the first time on 1968 Chevy II models.

ACCESSORIES & OPTIONS

DETROIT -- Light monitoring and power door lock systems plus added availability of popular stereo tape players highlight a list of more than 400 options and accessories offered on 1968 Chevrolet cars.

The light monitoring system tells the driver at a glance if important front and ear lights and signals are working. The fiber optic principle is used to "pipe" the actual lamp light to jeweled indicators mounted on front fenders and just below the rear window. The system is offered on Chevrolets, Chevelles and Camaros and one with indicators mounted on a console is standard on Corvettes.

The power door lock system, for all regular Chevrolets, allows the driver or front seat passenger to lock all doors simultaneously by a master control lever. Vacuum power iu furnished from the manifold.

Stereo tape players, rapidly growing in popularity since introduction by Chevrolet a year ago, are offered in 1968 on all lines except Corvettes. The line-up includes a new "mini-stereo" to complement the redesigned interior styling of the Chevelle and the Chevy II. Chevrolet has also extended the availability of the Cruisemaster -- a push-button highway speed control device -- to some light-duty pickup trucks.

The option and accessory list also features a wide variety of air conditioning units; numerous exterior and interior trims and convenience items; specially packaged accessory groups for operating convenience, appearance and auxiliary lighting; special equipment for traveling and trailering; and a number of highway safety aids.

SAFETY AND SECURITY IMPROVEMENTS

A number of safety and anti-theft product improvements have been made standard equipment on all 1968 Chevrolet passenger cars.

They include:

--Deflecting door and window control handles
--Safety door lock buttons
--Breakaway ashtray in instrumental panel
--Safety armrests positioned to shield door handles
--Energy-absorbing front seat backs
--Non-glare dull chrome finish on steering wheel trim

--Rear seat shoulder belt anchors (outboard passenger positions)
--Seat belts for ALL passenger positions

Highlights and Sidelights

TOURISM RECEIVES NEW DIRECTION

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.--Transition in state government can be a hectic proposition, and the transfer of Missouri tourism programs from the Department of Commerce and Industrial Development to the newly created Department of Tourism is no exception.

The state's new tourism director, Will Davis, has been wearing two hats --- that of his present post as press secretary to Gov. Warren Hearnes, and his new one which "officially" begins Oct. 13.

But even before the members of the commission had been announced Davis had been obtaining offices in the old Montgomery Ward building in Jefferson City and planning for a transition period which he said will continue through Jan. 1.

Although there will be no fanfare when the commission assumes its duties for the first time, an intensive study will be underway to determine where the state has not met the needs of promoting its tourism industry, now estimated to be the second largest industry in Missouri.

New commission members were named last week by Gov Hearnes, President Pro-Tem of the Missouri Senate John Joynt, and House Speaker James Godfrey. They include:

Lester Dill, Republican from Sullivan and owner of Meramec Caverns; Peter Herschend, Republican from Branson, owner of Silver Dollar City and Marble Cave and president of the South Ozark Lakes Assn.; Mark Todd, Democrat from Columbia and chairman of the Motel Association legislative committee; Jack Dickerson, Democrat from Camdenton and next president of the Lake of the Ozarks Assn.; Harold Koplar, Democrat from St. Louis, owner of the Chase Park Plaza, and a major stockholder in the Lodge of the Four Seasons on the Lake of the Ozarks.

Senate and House members include: Sen. John Joynt (D-St. Louis), Sen. Noel Cox (R-Ozark), Rep. Ruben A. Shapeler (D-Butler) and Rep. Robert E. Young (R-Cartharge).

PSC TO STUDY RAIL SERVICES

The Missouri Public Service Commission soon will hear arguments from representatives of the Missouri Pacific and the Norfolk and Western railroads to allow them to discontinue their passenger services in the state.

The commission grants the authority to operate passenger trains in the state and in turn must conduct hearings on petitions to discontinue such services.

Of the approximately 25 remaining railroad companies operating in Missouri, five have terminated all or a large part of their passenger services, with MoPac and the Norfolk and Western seeking to join the list.

GROUP TO STUDY STATE ELECTION LAWS

Missouri's first major study of election laws and procedures will begin Oct. 13 when, under new statutory authority, 15 legislators and private citizens will be named to an election law study commission.

Under a bill passed in the last session of the General Assembly, this commission is directed to update and clarify many of the state's antiquated laws governing elections, including the possible recommendation of electronic voting equipment for the state.

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, also a member of the commission and a major supporter of the bill which established it, said even today many election clerks and officials cannot be certain whether they have a right answer when they refer to election rules and regulations since many overlap and older ones dating back to the nineteenth century have been kept on the books while new ones have been added.

Kirkpatrick said he hopes the commission will ask the Legislative Research Department in the Capitol to codify and update the existing laws for presentation to the General Assembly.

MORE FISHING SPOTS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—Six reservoirs will increase Kentucky's major fishing and recreational lake waters by more than 26,000 acres in the next six years, the state says.

GOV. WARREN E. HEARNES is shown presenting the Governor's Missouri State Fair Grand Champion ham trophy to E. M. Burger of Burger's Smokehouse, who exhibited this year's grand champion ham. The prize-winning ham was sold for $500 to Delton Houtchens, chairman of the state Democratic committee at the old-fashioned country ham breakfast and auction August 22. This is the 10th year for Burger's hams to be declared the Grand Champion hams. Charlie Stearnes out at Marks and Stearnes super market has handled Burger hams by the truckload for the last several years under an exclusive distributorship for this area.

To the Editor
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

The proposed fourth television network, to be operated by a federal corporation with "cooperation of the three national commercial networks", has been loosely termed "public TV." The public will not operate this network if it is formed; the public will only be required to pay for it. The Government, through the proposed Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will operate the network. Therefore, it will be "Government TV", not "public TV." This mis-labeling does not square with the Government's own "truth in packaging" proposals.

The basic objection to this scheme is constitutional. Nowhere in its enumeration of powers of the Federal Government does the Constitution permit such activity. The First Amendment specifically forbids "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press" and the Government cannot control a major segment of the press and a major forum for verbal expression without curtailing or abridging the freedom and rights of the people.

Constructively,

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rep. Reynolds D. Rodgers, D-Kansas City, says he will continue to press for an investigation of the resignation of Dr. Randall M. Whaley as chancellor of the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

Dr. Whaley was relieved of his office by the M. U. Board of Curators Sept. 6, several days after he submitted his resignaton to take effect Dec. 31. The curator's action followed Dr. Weaver's recommendation.

"This entire matter has been under the careful scrutiny of the nine-man public board of curators, and I can assure you that there is no need for further inquiry."

The Whitney Shows what it Owns

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

CHARLES Burchfield's "Overhanging Cloud in July" — in the summer show at the Whitney Museum.

NEW YORK (AP) — The summer show at the Whitney Museum of American Art is full of contrasts. It also offers some interesting examples of the fact yesterday's shocking innovations seem pretty tame beside today's.

"American Art of the 20th Century," on exhibit through Sept. 17, is one of the most comprehensive surveys of this theme ever shown — 228 paintings and watercolors and 86 sculptures and constructions.

This is the first time the Whitney has been able to display such a large segment of its permanent collection of more than 2,700 works, since this is the first time it has devoted all its galleries in the new building on Madison Avenue to its own collection. The exhibit space is 33,000 square feet, nearly three times that of its former home on West 54th Street.

One of the contrasts is between the Ash Can School (Sloan, Luks, Glackens, etc.) which caused quite a furore early in the century by portraying common subjects instead of academic, classical themes, and one of today's avant-garde artists, Edward Kienholz.

Kienholz' "The Wait," a recent acquisition, is one of those environmental shockers for which he is noted. It consists of a corner of a decrepit old sitting room (seedy furniture, a moth-eaten lamp) at the center of which sits a skeleton-like old woman with a cat in her lap. An old birdcage contains a real, live parakeet, the only nondecrepit element in the whole assemblage.

It is an intentional use of unlovely materials to create a feeling in the viewer — whether of revulsion, pity or disgust. But then, years ago people thought the Ashcan School was being crude.

Another contrast is between the adherents of various "schools" and the lone wolves. An example of the latter is Charles Burchfield, who held his own while ignoring abstract expressionism, Pop, Op and everything else. There are two of his watercolors in the show, the better one being "Overhanging Cloud in July."

Edward Hopper is another example of a front-rank painter who followed his own course. Two of his oils and two of his watercolors are in the exhibit.

There was a time when abstract expressionism seemed to be a pretty wild innovation, but today it is old hat. The Whitney collection has a pretty thorough review of this school.

Among such items on display are Franz Kline's "Mahoning," Willem de Kooning's "Door to the River" and three oils by Adolph Gottlieb, including "The Frozen Sounds, Number 1." Other examples are Grace Hartigan's "Sweden," Philip Guston's "Dial" and Helen Frankenthaler's "Blue Territory." But Jackson Pollock isn't in the show.

Looking back to the 1920s there are such items as George Bellows' "Dempsey and Firpo," Charles DeMuth's "My Egypt" and three canvases by Arshile Gorky, including "The Artist and His Mother."

From the 1930s there are examples from such familiar figures as Raphael Soyer, Walt Kuhn and Reginald Marsh.

The sculptures include two important works by Jo Davidson — her Buddha-like figure of Gertrude Stein and her bust of Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, the museum's founder. But the range of sculpture also comes down to the present time, with its motorized constructions, such as Len Lye's "Fountain," a revolving spray of wire rods.

COORDINATION'S THE KEY—An attractive kitchen-dining area is created by wise use of companion cotton fabrics and wallpaper. Unusual window treatment features tie-back printed curtains and sill-to-floor cafes in solid red cotton hung inside a double wooden lambrequin. Companion wallpaper is used on the adjacent wall and below the counter to give continuity to the room. Fabrics by Waverly.

ABC AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION

One in a series of messages to advertisers

How to win at shadow tag

As a youngster, perhaps you too enjoyed the game of shadow tag. What fun it was in the late afternoon, when shadows were long and easy to catch. As we recall, there was a way of winning at shadow tag. As long as the one who was "it" was kept between you and the sun, he never got close enough to your shadow for a tag. If the real you got caught, so did your shadow.

We got to thinking about this game the other day, during a discussion of circulation and how many different ways there are to "determine" the size of a circulation audience for advertising. You can multiply units of circulation by units of people and maybe you will get reader audience. Studies and surveys can produce age, sex, income, and all sorts of other factors which, when multiplied by units of circulation, might give you other kinds of audience figures.

No matter how it is figured, a circulation audience can never be more reliable than the circulation figures from which the shadow is projected. While the size and shape of the shadow changes in the light of varying points of interest, the child at tag and the circulation under study remains the same.

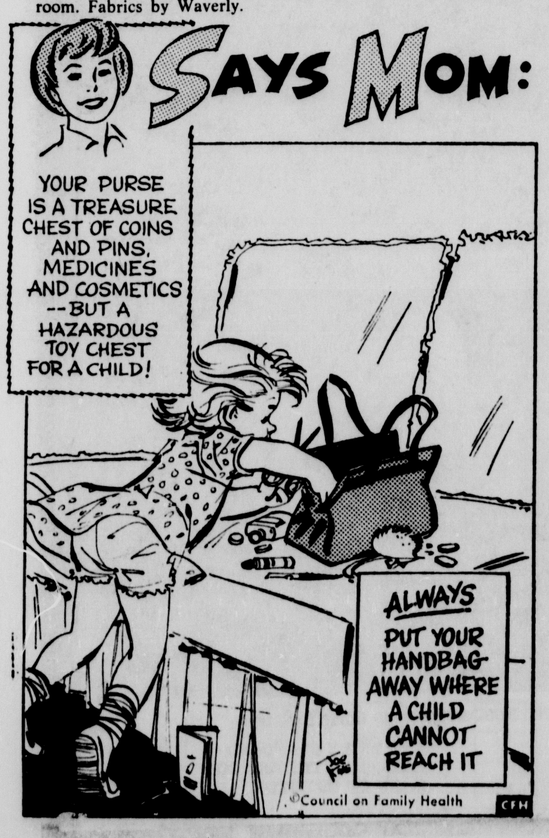

We believe it is our obligation, as a seller of the commodity of advertising space, to provide you with complete and accurate circulation figures. We believe in full disclosure of circulation facts, based on uniform standards, permitting close examination from any point of interest. We believe, further, that such facts and figures should come not from us or our agents, but from an independent, objective circulation measuring and reporting service.

That's why the Audit Bureau of Circulations was organized 50 years ago, and why more than 4,000 advertisers, advertising agencies, and publishers support this voluntary, self-regulatory effort today. That's why we are ABC members.

Come to think of it, we never were much good at shadow tag. Just ask to see a copy of our latest ABC report — it will let you tag the real us.

HAIR OF THE DOG FOR COATS

LISBON (AP) — "Is your coat made out of dog hair?"

That's not an uncommon question in Lisbon, where the hair of dead mongrels is often used for garments. But a small town in the Portuguese African territory of Mozambique appears to have gone Lisbon one better.

Some people were selecting their coats while the dogs were still wearing them on the streets of the small southern village of Inhambane. The dogs were shot and skinned on the spot — by village employes paid to get rid of dogs.

The town is infested with them, according to the Mozambique newspaper Noticias.

Several of the more refined villagers protested to municipal authorities, however, and the practice was stopped. From now on, dogs will be picked up and held for three days. They will then be painlessly killed—and skinned—if no one claims them.

This is the practice followed here, where coats and ladies' winter hats made out of the best dog hair bring good prices.

Ann Landers

Man, 80, Has Right to Kick up His Heels

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of an 80-year-old man who buried his wife 11 years ago, and is now going steady with a lady friend?

Gramps was always a person who saved his money. Suddenly he has taken to buying sports jackets and shoes with buckles instead of laces. He gets the best seats to the concerts and plays and he never misses a football or a basketball game. He didn't do any of these things 40 years ago when it would have made some sense.

I am a relative and am very concerned about his foolishness. How can we get it across to Gramps that he should be saving his money for his old age so in case he becomes ill and incapacitated he will not be burden to his family? Thank you. — WORRIED FAMILY

Dear Family: Sorry, but I am not going to tell a man who is 80 to save money for his old age. It sounds as if Gramps is just beginning to get a kick out of life and I say hooray for him. If you want to do him a favor, make sure he has his supplemental medicare paid up and tell him to enjoy himself.

Dear Ann Landers: When I was 13 I hated my mother. Almost all my girl friends were allowed to date, but I had to wait till I got into the 10th grade! I was humiliated and ashamed. I accused her of trying to keep me a baby all my life. We had some terrible arguments but I couldn't get her to budge.

I am 15 now and just had my third date. What happened last night made me realize that my mother was a lot smarter than I was and I thank the good Lord she didn't let me grind her down.

Rick was the dreamiest, smoothest talking guy I'd ever met in my whole life. It was supposed to be a double date but at the last minute we wound up alone. I'm sure he faked me out. Rick said he wanted to get to know the real me and going to a movie would be a waste of time so he drove directly to a secluded spot off the main highway and we parked.

Rick handed me a line you could hang a two-weeks' wash on. He said I was the girl he had been looking for all his life — that I was wise beyond my years, yet so innocent and fresh. He wanted me to learn about life and love from HIM — not from some inexperienced clod who might scar me emotionally and make me afraid of sex for the rest of my life.

I thanked him for being so thoughtful and considerate and told him it was real noble of him but I wasn't buying. I also told him if he didn't keep his big paws off me I might have to loosen a few of his teeth to prove I wasn't kidding.

I am proud of the way I handled that character and now I can laugh about it. I am also certain that two years ago I would have been no match for him. I am lucky I have a mom who stuck to her guns. Just sign me — A GRATEFUL DAUGHTER

Dear Daughter: Three cheers for you and four cheers for your mother. Those super salesmen with Roman hands and Russian impulses can be mighty dangerous company. I hope your letter will give the eager 13-year-olds across the country something to think about.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The Prayer

From
The Upper Room

The word of the cross is folly to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God. (I Corinthians 1:18, RSV).

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for saving us from sin through the cross of Jesus Christ. We pray that the Christ who gave His life on the cross should be in the center in our heart and control our whole lives. We ask for this through Jesus. Amen.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) - Their pelts might make one of the most expensive coats for women, but the South African Airways refuse to airfreight them.

If You Were the Judge

Vacation without Pay Merits Jobless Aid

Buster landed a swell job in Dinklemier's shoe factory and got an unexpected boot two months later. Under a labor-management contract, Mr. Dinklemier had the right to allocate vacations amongst his employees as he saw fit. And, he saw fit to insist that Buster take a vacation. Under normal circumstances, this would have been fine with Buster, but, since he lacked seniority to be entitled to a vacation with pay, he had to go empty pocketed.

Hurrying to the nearest unemployment office, busted Buster demanded unemployment benefits.

"Buy you're not unemployed," he was told. "You've got a job and a pretty good one."

"Some job!" was Buster's answer. "I'm employed, but I'm not working and I'm not getting paid. To hold such a marvelous job, you've got to be independently wealthy. Since I'm not, I'm entitled to unemployment benefits."

When it was refused, Buster took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Buster to collect unemployment benefits while he's on vacation?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that when an employee is forced to take a vacation without pay under a labor - management contract he is deemed to be involuntarily and totally unemployed so as to entitle him to unemployment benefits for the duration of his "vacation."

Life on Atlantic More Serene than on River

CAPE GIRARDEAU - A Cleveland, Ohio, newspaperman who sailed the Atlantic Ocean in 13 1/2-foot "Tinkerbelle" said during a Cape Girardeau stop that he prefers the Atlantic to the Mississippi river.

"There are just too many things to watch at once," explained Robert Manry who chose a boat twice as long as "Tinkerbell" for his cruise down the Mississippi to New Orleans, La., and on to the Bahamas.

He said during his 78-day journey to England in 1965, he just headed "Tinkerbelle" in the right direction and let the wind do the rest.

However, on the Mississippi there is little wind but much barge traffic plus sandbars to watch. "It can get a little dangerous at times," he added.

Manry's lattest trip comes some two years after he became the first man believed to ever sail the Atlantic in that small a boat.

The newsman has brought along his family, including his wife, Virginia, two children, a German Shepherd dog and a cat.

The Manrys live on their boat named "Curlew" ("Tinkerbelle" is now in a museum) which covers about 75 miles a day at approximately nine miles per hour. It is powered by a 30-horsepower inboard motor.

All four Manrys are keeping diaries and once they return home plan to write a book on their experiences. Manry has published a book on his trans-Atlantic trip.

The fish-loving Portuguese are fond of beef, but they grow and import only limited quantities. This was the largest shipment of cattle from the United States to Portugal.

High cost of college education ?

Not as high as it might be. Because tuition pays only ⅓ of what it costs a college to educate a student. The other ⅔ must come from government, foundations, business—and you.

Give to the college of your choice.

Women, Volunteer Organizations Called Great Untapped Resources

COLUMBIA -- A rapidly moving world, changing values, social problems and concern for the destiny of mankind are calling for the efforts of two great untapped resources -- women and voluntary organizations.

Mrs. Warren Hearnes, wife of the Missouri Governor, in her luncheon address, rejected the clinches about the chauffeuring mother and the home-neglecting clubwoman. "They do not accurately portray the great majority of women and they do not accurately show the real nature of the modern woman's involvement in her world."

She cited the large number of women retraining to enter teaching, the leadership of women in fornation of 52 local art councils in the state and women's increased activities in politics as delegates and candidates.

Woman's fulfillment, she concluded, "lies in her going out to others, not turning in on herself."

But the two-day seminar on social change and new directions in continuing education for women at the University of Missouri, Columbia, received a suggestion that women aren't carrying their load.

"Women have not entered into full participation in society," said Dr. Francena Miller, general director of the American Association of University Women.

"Almost 40 per cent of girls with college ability do not enroll. Of those who do, half drop out before they finish. A static 16 to 18 percent continue for master's degrees, the same level as in World War II. Numbers receiving doctor of philosophy degrees have changed little.

"Two -thirds are in clerical, operative or service positions," she continued. "Only 14 per cent are in professional technical rolles."

"Even the most capable settle for middle-level occupations which demand less than their total talent."

Obstacles, of course, are problems of competent homemaking services and child care, difficulty of returning to college, discrimination and lack of motivation.

Other speakers, however, took a broader view.

It is the needs of society that are stirring women in the search to be effective, John Anthony Brown, president of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, said. Women are examining themselves, their role and their home--all affected by a rapidly changing world calling for adjustment by all. Women have a contribution to make that is unique because they are women.

The mature women yearns for fulfillment and new challenging educational programs need to be set up that allow her to follow those interests and concerns she is distinctly fitted to--with the quality of life, with a humanistic life and with a world whose problems are demanding her concern and her active paticipation.

LEADERS IN A SEMINAR on continuing education for women at the University of Missouri in Columbia, are, from left, Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, University vice president for extension; Mrs. Warren Hearnes, wife of Missouri's governor; and Mrs. John C. Weaver, wife of the University president.

According to Dr. Miller, women have a special competence in meeting human needs and the growing needs of not only those close to us but in the destiny of mankind. Social unrest, changing values are calling for her resources. Woman is seeking expression and satisfaction above her ordinary household duties. Flexible educational programs need developing for her special life style and voluntary organizations are a channel to reach her individually. These organizations offer the woman the chance to mold her opinion into active force.

Mrs. John C. Weaver, wife of the University president, voiced optimism in her comments on education. She said that these days women are accepting their responsibilities and training for them. In a fast moving world, a life getting more complex, ones hope of keeping up is in continuing education. She said women are working harder and are serious about their responsibilities. Women are returning to education to close the broadening gap between generations.

Mrs. Clarissa Start Davidson, feature writer and columnist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, advised how voluntary organizations can best serve the woman. She said that women need continuing education for all kinds of reasons -- to get out of the cabin, to earn a living, to feel necessary, to expand cultural horizons. There are some who need education not just continuing education. Voluntary organizations can help by providing notivation, publicising work opportunities, not necessarily those to fill time but those where the woman feels needed. The group that needs education should be sought out individually and the opportunity must be brought to them.

She suggested that voluntary organizations provide information about educational avenues, most of all, adopt a positive point of view of continuing education for all women.

Chamber Sets Goal of 50 New Members

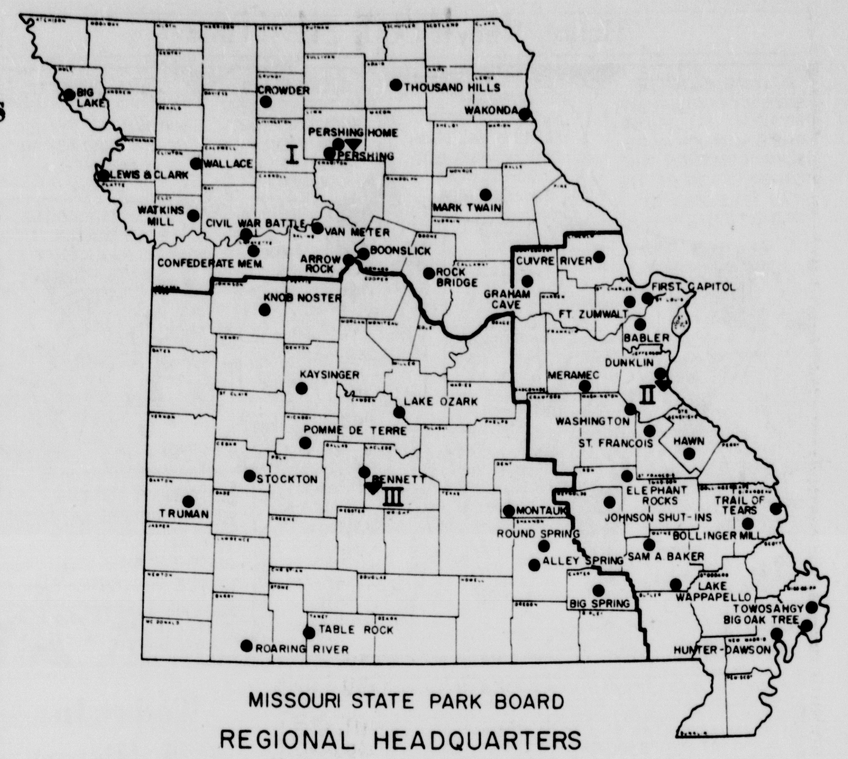

About 30 members of the Chamber of Commerce are expected to participate in the annual membership drive Tuesday, Richard Pinkerton, manager, said.

The chamber operates on the slogan "Hire Your Chamber of Commerce Office," Pinkerton noted. The slogan is appropriate, because the chamber works to increase business and industry, thus generate growth and stimulating economic enterprise in the community, he added.

The chamber now has a membership of 235. The minimum goal set for the drive Tuesday is 50 new members. It is hoped that the membership will reach 300, Pinkerton said.

The drive will start with a 7:30 a.m. breakfast meeting of the drive workers at the El Capri Restuarant. Prospective member cards will be distributed at the meeting and an explanation will be made of the fair share policy of membership expense.

Four factors are considered for membership of firms: Number of employes, square footage of building, ownership of property, and gross income of business.

Buckles Seeks Aid for Flood Victims

Personal concern for displaced flood victims in Texas' Rio Grade valley has prompted retired Sikeston businessman Harry A. Buckles to seek the aid of area residents in providing clothing for the thousands of Texans chased from their homes.

A flood relief headquarters has been established in a vacant store at 135 East Front Street next door to Voelker's Jewelry. Collection of clothing will begin at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and will continue for one week, according to Buckles, who says all sizes of serviceable clothing, blankets and quilts are urgently needed in the flood zone.

In connection with the drive Buckles says help also is needed at the collection center and any help from church groups, civic clubs or individuals will be appreciated. In addition to clothing Buckles says cash contributions will be accepted and forwarded to the proper authorities for the relief of flood victims. Checks should be made out to flood relief and may be mailed to Buckles at 309 North Prairie.

Stores having items they are willing to contribute also are asked to help, says Buckles who hopes to see the project grow into a community wide effort. He says it has been approved by city officials.

Buckles' concern stems from friendships and personal ties accumulated during 12 winters he and Mrs. Buckles have spent in that area. He formerly operated a Sikeston upholstery firm, which still bears his name.

Contacts with friends relating the seriousness of the flooding in the Rio Grande valley area covering more than 43,000 square miles with a population of approximately one million residents heightened Buckles' concern to the point of calling on fellow Southeast Missourians to help ease the strain on the victims.

The flooding has followed heavy rains of up to 30 inches in some area which accompanied Hurricane Beulah into the south Texas valley area. Reports reaching Buckles indicate that food and lodging needs of the flood victims are being met, but that there is a dire need of all types of clothing and bedding.

Information may be obtained by calling Buckles at GR 1-4045.

Rotarians Told to Aid Others

A double dose of humanitarianism was administered to the Rotary club last night by two speakers -- a Red Cross regional director and a supervisor of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation in three counties.

Dan Stango, St. Louis, the Red Cross executive, gave a campsule summary of his work since joining the organization in 1953 to illustrate the activities of the Red Cross, a United Fund beneficiary.

Chip Schmerbauch, the war on poverty supervisor, challenged Rotarians to become active in eliminating poverty and all the social problems it produces.

"It won't be done if it is left to someone else to do it," he said. "You are involved. You are affected.

"The government (federal) is big but it is still yours," he said. "You are affected by it."

Schmerbauch quoted the Rotarian magazine, Sylvia Porter, economist and newspaper columnist; Past President Richard Evans of Rotary International, and the Rotary slogan "Service Above Self" to emphiasize the importance of helping people in the community and for planning a better future for them.

He described the turmoil in DAEOC, the six-county Southeast Missouri anti-poverty agency which has been embroiled in controversy and a succession of directors, and predicted the region would lose two and a half million dollars of federal funds as a result of an evaluation of the program.

"You weren't interested is one of the reasons," he said.

"Too few of you practice service above self."

Declaring the purpose of the Community Action program was to help communities mobilize to combat poverty he told of some of the work and described some aspects of the need.

He also said that he wished that the money spent on paying 15 evaluators from the Kansas City regional office of the Office of Economic Opportunity to appraise the worth of the Bootheel program could have "gone directly to help the poor."

Schmerbauch said that Pemiscot, Mississippi, and New Madrid counties rank one, two and three in Missouri in the percentage of adults 25 years of age with less than five years schooling.

Discussing the work in the poverty war, he said by detecting malnutrition in a child he had been spared blindness; 199 hours of volunteer work had been put in interesting girls in joining the job corps, 747 children had been immunized against disease for the first time in Stoddard county, aid has been given the mentally retarded.

Stango, the Red Cross executive, told the club that the organization had 125 shelters in the Texas flood and that it was feeding 200,000 people daily.

His own assignments have been at the Philadelphia naval base to assist servicemen, Fort Knox, Ky., Japan, the Alaskan earthquakes, Louisiana hurricanes and Michigan tornadoes and at Michigan in promoting water safety. His work now is with blood banks.

He said that assistance in disasters always involves grants and never loans. The serviceman is given a loan for an emergency leave but if he is unable to repay it a grant.

There are now more than 200 Red Cross representatives in Vietnam, he said.

Norman Wenskay of the Morley club was a visiting Rotarian.

Emily Bruce entertained with piano music.

Floodwaters Reach Downtown Harlingen

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)— Rio Grande floodwaters surged into downtown Harlingen today and crept over roofs in some residential sections as runoff rainwater loosed by Hurricane Beulah thundered toward the Gulf of Mexico.

At least 200 homes, some of them in $50,000 class, were inundated. More than 5,000 persons, or one out of eight in this South Texas city of 41,000, were evacuated.

Damage estimates went past the $1 billion mark for devastation wrought since the gigantic storm, one of history's most powerful hurricanes, slammed into the Texas-Mexican coast Wednesday.

Some 20,000 persons throughout the 40,000 square-mile Texas region struck by Beulah remained in Red Cross shelters. Most rivers affected were receding today but many remained above flood stage.

The Nueces river at Calliham, for example, was at 30 feet today, 15 feet above flood stage.

Harlingen residents continued to flee as debris-laden water coursing in from the Rio Grande, 15, miles to the south, rose higher in the Arroyo Colorado.

The water level in the Arroyo was 43.10 feet above mean sea level shortly after dawn today, and rising about an inch an hour.

The death toll from Beulah hurricane-created turbulence and tornadoes spawned by the stood at 44, including 11 in Texas and 33 elsewhere in the big storm's wake from the Windward Islands through Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

The Red Cross said it was sheltering more than 25,000 persons in 17 cities, not counting 4,500 Mexicans who sought emergency shelter in private U.S. homes. The Mexican government counted 100,000 homeless on its side of the Rio Grande from Camargo 100 miles downstream to Matamoros, near the river's mouth.

The flooding became serious Sunday night after a diversion dam on the Arroyo Colorado broke, sending tons of water down that wide diversion channel.

Service Station Robbed, Attendant Takes Ride

NEW MADRID -- A lone gunman last night held up a service station and took the attendant captive for a half hour.

The attendant, Dewey Kiplinger, 37, or Marston, said the gunman pulled into Lee's Standard service station about 7:30 p.m. and told Kiplinger to fill the tank with gasoline.

The man got out of his car and went into the station to get a package of cigarettes but said he didn't have change. He asked Kiplinger to give him change, and when the attendant opened the cash register, the man pulled out a revolver, Kiplinger said.

The gunman told the attendant to give him the money in the register. He took $60-$80 in bills but didn't take the change.

The gunman then told Kiplinger to come with him. They drove south on U.S. 61, and the gunman turned right on highway 62, traveled a mile and let the attendant out, Kiplinger said.

Kiplinger said the gunman told him that he needed the money to help a girl who was in trouble. Kiplinger ran to a nearby house and called the police.

The gunman was described as a white male, 35-40 years old, six foot one or two inches tall, 225-230 pounds and ruddy complexion. He was wearing a light blue mechanic uniform with a red and white name patch. He had been drinking, the attendant said.

Kiplinger said the gunman was driving a light blue or blue-green 1951 or 1952 Plymouth with a 1968 Missouri license plate. The last three numbers on the plate were 382.

The Johnson car struck the Fowler car in the side.

Today at 6:15 a.m. on highway 114, a half-mile east of Morehouse, Virginia Lutes, 26, Morehouse, apparently went to sleep while driving west in a 1960 Dodge station wagon and struck a bridge.

A railing was sheared and the car heavily damaged.

Buckles Seeks Aid for Flood Victims

Personal concern for displaced flood victims in Texas' Rio Grade valley has prompted retired Sikeston businessman Harry A. Buckles to seek the aid of area residents in providing clothing for the thousands of Texans chased from their homes.

A flood relief headquarters has been established in a vacant store at 135 East Front Street next door to Voelker's Jewelry. Collection of clothing will begin at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and will continue for one week, according to Buckles, who says all sizes of serviceable clothing, blankets and quilts are urgently needed in the flood zone.

In connection with the drive Buckles says help also is needed at the collection center and any help from church groups, civic clubs or individuals will be appreciated. In addition to clothing Buckles says cash contributions will be accepted and forwarded to the proper authorities for the relief of flood victims. Checks should be made out to flood relief and may be mailed to Buckles at 309 North Prairie.

Stores having items they are willing to contribute also are asked to help, says Buckles who hopes to see the project grow into a community wide effort. He says it has been approved by city officials.

PROFS GET LOW GRADES AT BERKELEY

In a book I wrote a few years ago, I listed the following almost certain outcomes of the kind of life-adjustment, progressive education we were conducting in practically all California schools;

1. Violence -- When an educational philosophy is almost completely permissive -- lets a child express himself at any cost, holds we must avoid frustrating or inhibiting the child in any way, then the result is indiscipline, discourtesy, and doing what comes naturally; this means violence, for a human animal is a violent one.

2. Immortality and obscenity: When we educators began replacing "Evangeline" and "Silas Marner" with "Catcher in the Rye" and James Baldwin's latest, we were just asking for what we have since gotten.

Some English teachers, fascinated with so-called "avant garde" literature, assigned it indiscriminately to children, and sowed a whirlwind of literary filth which has since grown into wholesale obscenity on the part of too many young people. Once you agree that there are no positive standards, no eternal truths, no lasting values in life or in education -- then anything goes.

3. Decline of personal morale: It was the new behavioristic psychology which warned educators and parents against any interference whatsoever with the divine right of the child to express himself -- even if this self-expression turned out to be at the expense of those around him and at the cost of school discipline generally. The outcome was predictable: the beards, the sandals; the long, lank hair; the general aura of unwashed disinhibition.

Education exists to take kids who are naturally disposed to nature in the raw, and show them finer things in life to aspire to. When you permitted an educational philosophy to take over in this State which holds that the words "the good, the beautiful, the true," are all meaningless -- that everything in life is relative -- why, you were just asking for what you got. And you certainly got it, did not you?

4. Contempt for law and the democratic process: This country has just as large a percentage of decent, law-abiding youngsters as it ever had. But the minority, who always got into trouble in he past, are getting into worse trouble now.

Why? The doctrine of "permissiveness" -- another name for the "easy way out" -- took over both the homes and the schools two decades ago, and produced the least repressed and worst behaved generation this country has ever seen.

For months now the entire country has been gazing unbelievably at Berkeley. In the sacred name of free speech, police cars have been bashed in and campus police held prisoners.

The university president resigned, and then unresigned. So did the chancellor. The board of regents, charged with determining university policy, became so palsied at the mere possibility of bruising some beatnik's constitutional rights that for months it was afraid even to bring the matter to a vote.

The people of California are outraged. No other word fits. Almost every letter I get these days winds up with: What's causing this Berkeley mess?

College kids have always raised Ned. But they have always been punished too -- until now. Now they get away with everything from kidnapping to outraging public decency, and nothing happens to them.

Why? Not due to the administration or the regents. But because of the professors. They're responsible in two ways -- directly and indirectly.

Too many of them openly or tacitly endorse disorderly, or even criminal conduct by their students. We got nothing but obstruction from those professors who controlled the different faculty seats and committees.

The professors fouled things up indirectly because the administration and some regents were afraid some professors would quit. Many of the regents are appalled at the prospect that several of their more prestigious professors may resign out of sympathy for the poor downtrodden filthy speech boys, deprived of their sacred right to bellow obscenities over the campus public address system.

Not me. I'm the only regent except Dr. Kerr who is a professional educator -- I know my own kind. And I know we leave a teaching job voluntarily only when offered a better job elsewhere. We leave it to better ourselves -- not to show sympathy for some loud-mouthed showoffs who are doing their best to disrupt the scholarly pursuits of a great university.

For every professor who will quit if we apply discipline at Berkely, two will quit if we don't.

"Why," you ask, "should intelligent, scholarly professors act in such strange ways." Well, one thing they're trying to achieve is control of the university by the faculty, instead of by the people. They're seemingly enamoured of the European way of running a university. Over there, you know, the professors are the university. They make the rules. They establish policy. They hire and fire each other. Here, we Americans have long held the somewhat quaint idea that a people's university ought to be run by the people, not by stray groups of employees or students.

The real fight at Berkeley is over who's going to run the store. Are the people, who spend hundreds of millions to subsidize and support the university, going to turn the institution over to the inmates?

Here's my recipe: (1) Put all discipline in the chancellor's hands and out of the faculty committees. (2) Tell the chancellor to do whatever is necessary and let him do it. (3) If the chancellor can't or won't do it, fire him and get one who will. (4) If any students or professors don't like it, remind them that they can easily go elsewhere.

After law and order have been reestablished, the job has just begun. There is a very real if somewhat incoherent grievance on the part of the sincere and sober students with which all of us should concern ourselves.

This is a loss of identity, erosion of self-respect, increasing inability to identify as an individual with a "multiversity" numbering about 28,000 souls. It's a kind of creeping facelessness.

One Berkeley undergraduate wrote me recently: "I sit in a lecture class with 600 other students and I'm No. 327. The professor's lectures are piped in electronically. I never see him. The tests are collected automatically, corrected automatically, handed back automatically. I engage in group activities, group health services and group recreation. I came to the university to find myself -- to learn how to become a person. Instead, I've become a number."

We're all to blame. We've let the university become a factory. We've been willing to let George do it.

Always and forever, we who cherish the proud title of Californians will keep a special place in our hearts for the Berkeley campus. To us, she and she alone will always be "Cal." She belongs, thank God, to us all. Too great to be defiled by fools. Too wondrous ever to be turned over by default to any others save ourselves along.

A PERSON IN PRAYER will inspire anyone who chances to see them. And so it was last Friday when we asked Father Buhman if we could take our wife into St. Mary's Church to see how beautiful its new decorations are. When we went in we saw a young man kneeling in prayer. Happily, our presence did not disturb him. He was alone in the church when we went in and as we did not stay long, he was still kneeling when we went out. We do not know who he was, but that doesn't matter. We have the greatest respect for him taking his problem to the Lord. - Shelbina Democrat.

SERVICES LIST OCS PROGRAMS

Recruiters for U.S. armed services are constantly seeking officer material, the Catholic Digest points out. Each of the services has enlistment programs for commissioned officers-to-be. There are ten enlisted men in the Army for every officer. In the Navy, it's 8 to 1; in the Air Force, 7 to 1, and in the Marines it's 13 to 1. Weeding out is merciless in the officer programs. It has to be.

All five services have officer-candidate schools, 10 to 23 week training courses followed by commissions for graduates. The Marines, Navy, Air Force, and Coast Guard require college degrees for OCS. The Army will accept OCS enlistments from enlisted men with only high school diplomas, but requires a degree for OCS enlistment from civilian life.

It is possible that the nation's independent enterprisers could make even more of a contribution toward establishing a favorable balance of trade for the United States.

An analysis of the first 25,000 respondents to the 1967 continuous field survey of the National Federation of Independent Business shows that 4 per cent are engaged in producing and selling for export. Projected against the 4,500,000 independent business enterprises, this indicates that some 180,000 smaller firms are in a field commonly thought to be the exclusive domain of the giants.

However, it also appears that for a small business to engage in export business, the financing problem of doing business long distance is greater than doing business domestically. The data shows that while only 43 per cent of the independent firms confined to domestic operations applied during the past year for a bank loan, 58 per cent of those engaged in export needed bank loan assistance.

Also, while it could be assumed that any small business engaged in export would be located on the seaboards, the fitures show the firms so engaged fairly evenly distributed regionally.

The following table shows the per cent of independent businesses in each region engaged in export, the percentage of those so engaged who have sought bank loans as compared to those firms in each region not engaged in export who applied for bank loans.

The business export is shown in the following order in percentages: Firms Exporting, Exporters Applied for Bank Loans and Non - exporters who Applied for Bank Loans.

New England	4	54	46
Middle Atlantic	6	57	36
East N. Central	4	56	42
West N. Central	2	50	48
South Atlantic	4	67	45
East S. Central	2	42	41
West S. Central	3	57	45
Mountain	2	87	49
Pacific	5	68	42

Presumably, these smaller firms engaged in export contribute entirely to the credit side of the balance of trade as unlike many of the big U.S. industrial complexes they do not operate plants abroad which also ship goods into the United States, as for example, the auto makers do.

However, financing of export business by the smaller firm is a substantial problem due to the length of time that working capital is tied up in the transactions.

A New England aluminum foundry reports that it is dropping its export activity as it is too cumbersome in relation to profits.

A Michigan firm engaged in making farm equipment employing ten people reports the foreign market is better than the domestic market, except that currency exchange and tariffs hurt. This firm believes enactment of the "plowback allowance" would be helpful.

A plastic manufacturer in Pennsylvania with 175 employees says that the Dept. of Commerce could make it easier for exporters and could also furnish more information. Ths same firm also feels that the Small Business Administration could cut a great deal of red tape in making loans.

A West Virginia firm employing 60 people engaged in export reports that when the minimum wage law came into affect, five employees had to be dropped because of price competition.

A metal fabricator in Florida reports that they have about reached their limit in effort due to the tightness of money and the shortage of skilled labor. This firm reports "government training programs in our area not producing fully trained men. The expectations these people have regarding position and salary are beyond reach. They are inadequately trained and come with the attitude they cannot be taught anymore."

From speciality foods to plowshares, the independent business engaged inexport trade is somewhat wary of what the future holds for this activity. And unlike many foreign nations, the American independent business is not given tax incentives for promoting an export business, nor is there any apparent concerted efforgby any government agency to make available to them sources of capital at inerest rates compatible with the problems of engaging in export.

The late President Kennedy shortly before his death was urging that special efforts be made to expand the export business, but before concrete plans were formulated he was assassinated.

Since that time, apparently, nothing has been carried forward to encourage American business, and especially the smaller firms, to either enter, or enlarge their export activities, although there seems ample evidence that these firms can find foreign markets for their products.

So far the data gathered indicates that the smaller American businessman is capable of, and willing, to enter into the export market with a minimum, if any, marketing help from government. What is apparently needed is a realistic approach to the application of income taxes to that part of a firm's business that is developed through exporting. There has been suggested that the export portion of a firm's business be excluded from all taxes, at least for a period of years until the overseas operations are on a firm footing.

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: Read an article that says the Supreme Court of California ruled 5 to 2 the people how a right to vote on the war. One judge held they only had a right to vote in municipal elections. That ruling would disqualify them to vote in State and National elections. That bird must be from Missouri.

Our forefathers provided us with the machinery to rub out any mistake we made in electing officials. Looks like if the people don't start rubbing out, they are gonna get rubbed out. Self defense and self preservation is the basic laws of nature. Seems like the people have lost control.

It may take some heroic measures to restore them to their constitutional rights, and since the conspiracy has no regard for the people's pocketbook, feelings, rights or what have you, any guy who takes the oath of office, then does an about face, then joins the conspiracy to cripple our constitution is an enemy of our nation and it's people and should be dealt with accordingly, immediately.

H.L. Hunt Says

STATE CHIEF JUSTICES SPEAK

The U.S. Supreme Court in recent years has returned numerous decisions which, whatever their intent, have had the effect of making it easier for criminals to escape the consequences of their wrongdoing. A resolution adopted by chief justices of the state courts at their recent conference in Honolulu is in glaring contrast to these decisions by a majority of the Supreme Court justices.

The resolution, adopted without dissent by the 45 chief justices attending the Honolulu meeting, took official note of the rising crime rate and the riots in our cities. Pointing out that 1967 has been a year of "unprecedented lawlessness and mob violence," the state justices declared the chief cause is "a lack of respect for the law and an utter disregard for its proper enforcement in the minds of a growing number of citizens. Furthermore, they suggested strongly that recent court laxities toward criminals, many of whom have been freed on technicalities after conviction, must be changed.

"It is as imperative," their resolution said, "that those who breach the law be punished as it is that the innocent be protected, and it is equally essential that it be demonstrated that the law-abiding citizen will receive protection of the law from the lawless as it is that guarantees will be afforded him who is accused of its breach." The chief justices then called for a reappraisal of laws and procedures which affect the work of police, prosecutors and courts. This resolution, truly judicial in nature, is recommended reading for justices of the U.S. Supreme Court. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a business writer never would know if he kept his eyes closed:

A small restaurant on Manhattan's Lower East Side does a big business selling "Oriental pizza". A nearby delicatessen offers "kosher Chinese food."

The people of Nantucket Island, the "little gray lady of the sea," do a thriving business making, bottling and selling "Rose Hip Jelly" to offislanders. The jelly is made from the buds of roses which grow wild on the island.

A tiny New York art shop advertises: "Original oil paintings $3— no forgeries here."

New York, which estimates it removes 4½ pounds of garbage a day for each of its 8 million residents, spends more than $130 million a year on garbage removal. It also estimates it collects enough refuse each year to fill the 102-story Empire State Building 15 times.

And the chairman of one of the nation's large can companies estimates that each year Americans toss out more than 48 billion cans (more than 250 a person), 25 billion bottles and jars (135 a person), and 65 million metal and plastic caps and crowns (338 a person.)

Souvenir spoons commemorating famous world's fairs of the past are sought avidly by some antique collectors. But with demand for the spoons so great, some of the collectors are getting out of spoons and into the less crowded field of souvenir forks.

There are better ways of making a living than bank robbery. The American Bankers Association says at least 53 per cent of the gunmen who held up banks in 1965 and 1966 were captured and drew sentences ranging from eight years to death, with 14 years the average.

Some 35 million copies of comic books are sold in the United States each month, with the bulk being read by those between the ages of 5 and 18. About 90 per cent of the books have 32 pages plus covers, and sell for 12 cents.

Apricots, originating in China, were carried from Asia to Greece by Alexander the Great. The avocado was cultivated by Central American Indians for hundreds of years before it was taken to California by the Spaniards. The artichoke, whose name comes from Italian words meaning "pine cone", was introduced into Louisiana by the French. The pharoahs of Egypt considered mushrooms a great delicacy and in ancient Rome they were regarded as the "food of the gods".

When Christopher Columbus came to America there were no cows, so he brought some on his second voyage in 1493 to the islands of the West Indies. Last year, more than 120 billion pounds of milk was produced in the United States. It takes 21.1 pounds of whole milk to make one pound of butter.

In 1956, it was estimated that only 10 per cent of this nation's adults had ever bought an airline ticket. In 1966, a survey estimated the figure had risen to 42 per cent.

Dealers are cashing in on the public demand for old street signs to use as home furnishings. The signs, usually purchased from a city as it replaces them, retail for from $20 to $40.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Pan American foreign ministers, meeting in Washington this week, have an opportunity to boost the prestige of the organization of the American states so that it may rival -- or even surpass -- the effectiveness of the United Nations. Or they can let it get bogged down in the slough of complacency again.

Which way they go will depend on whom they elect as OAS secretary general. They can elect another chairwarmer, as they have now, or another statesman such as Lleras Camargo, ex-President of Colombia, or Carlos Davila, ex- President of Chile. Both made the Pan American Union a powerful force for better understanding and peace.

Several excellent candidates are available for the secretary-generalship, including Walter Guevara Arze, brilliant Bolivian foreign minister, and Marcos Falcon Briceno, former foreign minister of Venezuela who helped pilot that country through one of its most difficult periods after the Perez Jimenez dictatorship.

However, the ex-President of Ecuador, Galo Plaza, has by far the most experience in handling world trouble spots. He has been drafted by the United Nations as a trouble - shooter in Cyprus, in Lebanon when President Eisenhower landed troops there, and in the Congo.

Quite recently Galo Plaza went to Haiti, another potential trouble spot, to try to head off trouble before it breaks. The confidential plan which he recommended to the OAS is now partially in effect.

What President Johnson and the Pan American Presidents he conferred with last April are resolved to do is to prevent riots and war before they come to a boil. Galo Plaza is skilled at this.

His chief handicap is that he was born in New York, studied at the Universities of California and Maryland. This makes him pro-USA in the eyes of Latin America. However, the government of Peru, which does not have diplomatic relations with Ecuador, has recognized Galo Plaza's usefulness and said it would not object to him as secretary general of the OAS.

HUMPHREY HUMOR

Vice President Humphrey was giving a luncheon for President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy and introduced Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island.

"I have a secret which I hope Senator Pastore will not mind my divulging," said Humphrey. "He was born Giovanni O. Pastore. But, being a good Democrat, he changed his name to John O. Pastore when he came of age.

"You see, if he had left the 'Giovanni' in there his initials would have been GOP!"

TEMPERAMENTAL EV

Sen. Everett Dirksen's now-I'm - for - him - now - I'm - not game is coming to a head with commissioner Carl Bagge, the man Dirksen recommended for the federal power commission but now opposes.

For five long months, the senior senator from Illinois has blocked Bagge's confirmation, even though it was Dirksen who originally persuaded the President to appoint him.

Today (Sep. 26), however, Bagge's name will finally be pried out of the senate commerce committee by chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., and will be sent to the full senate for final action.

Inside reason for Dirksen's opposition to the man he recommended is understood to be the commissioner's backing of the "power reliability" bill providing for inter-ties between power companies so as to prevent blackouts such as paralyzed New York state two years ago. Midwest power companies don't like the bill as drafted by the federal power commission.

PRESS AND MONOPOLY

Newspaper publishers may be in for an all-important decision when U. S. District Judge Warren Ferguson in Southern California hands down his decision in the Los Angeles Times anti-trust case. He is expected to rule that the Times must sell the San Bernardino Sun, located in the Times circulation area.

In recent years many larger newspapers have acquired smaller newspapers, though most of them have gone outside their own circulation area. Thus the Philadelphia Bulletin has acquired the Santa Barbara News-Press on the West Coast, 3,000 miles away from Philadelphia. The Chicago Tribune has also acquired the Orlando Sentinel, about 2,000 miles away in Florida. The justice department sees no violation of the anti-trust act in these purchases.

However, it took a different view of the purchase of the San Bernardino Sun by the L. A. Times because that meant a concentration of newspaper power in a relatively small, densely populated area.

This was why the L. A. Times was slapped with an antitrust suit. The decision by Judge Ferguson is expected to set newspaper history in the United States.

BRITISH COMPETITION

While American newspapers have diminished in number and news services have tended toward mergers, Reuthers, the British news agency, has invaded the American market with new and extensive coverage.

For the first time in history, Reuters is not relying on the Associated Press for domestic news coverage in the United States, but has established its own correspondents and bureaus from New York to the West Coast.

Reuters now serves 65 newspapers in the United States, and in these days of increasing news monopoly, plans to give American newsgathering agencies a run for their money.

Why? Not due to the administration or the regents. But because of the professors. They're responsible in two ways -- directly and indirectly.

Too many of them openly or tacitly endorse disorderly, or even criminal conduct by their students. We got nothing but obstruction from those professors who controlled the different faculty seats and committees.

The professors fouled things up indirectly because the administration and some regents were afraid some professors would quit. Many of the regents are appalled at the prospect that several of their more prestigious professors may resign out of sympathy for the poor downtrodden filthy speech boys, deprived of their sacred right to bellow obscenities over the campus public address system.

Not me. I'm the only regent except Dr. Kerr who is a professional educator -- I know my own kind. And I know we leave a teaching job voluntarily only when offered a better job elsewhere. We leave it to better ourselves -- not to show sympathy for some loud-mouthed showoffs who are doing their best to disrupt the scholarly pursuits of a great university.

For every professor who will quit if we apply discipline at Berkely, two will quit if we don't.

"Why," you ask, "should intelligent, scholarly professors act in such strange ways." Well, one thing they're trying to achieve is control of the university by the faculty, instead of by the people. They're seemingly enamoured of the European way of running a university. Over there, you know, the professors are the university. They make the rules. They establish policy. They hire and fire each other. Here, we Americans have long held the somewhat quaint idea that a people's university ought to be run by the people, not by stray groups of employees or students.

The real fight at Berkeley is over who's going to run the store. Are the people, who spend hundreds of millions to subsidize and support the university, going to turn the institution over to the inmates?

Here's my recipe: (1) Put all discipline in the chancellor's hands and out of the faculty committees. (2) Tell the chancellor to do whatever is necessary and let him do it. (3) If the chancellor can't or won't do it, fire him and get one who will. (4) If any students or professors don't like it, remind them that they can easily go elsewhere.

After law and order have been reestablished, the job has just begun. There is a very real if somewhat incoherent grievance on the part of the sincere and sober students with which all of us should concern ourselves.

This is a loss of identity, erosion of self-respect, increasing inability to identify as an individual with a "multiversity" numbering about 28,000 souls. It's a kind of creeping facelessness.

One Berkeley undergraduate wrote me recently: "I sit in a lecture class with 600 other students and I'm No. 327. The professor's lectures are piped in electronically. I never see him. The tests are collected automatically, corrected automatically, handed back automatically. I engage in group activities, group health services and group recreation. I came to the university to find myself -- to learn how to become a person. Instead, I've become a number."

We're all to blame. We've let the university become a factory. We've been willing to let George do it.

Always and forever, we who cherish the proud title of Californians will keep a special place in our hearts for the Berkeley campus. To us, she and she alone will always be "Cal." She belongs, thank God, to us all. Too great to be defiled by fools. Too wondrous ever to be turned over by default to any others save ourselves along.

A PERSON IN PRAYER will inspire anyone who chances to see them. And so it was last Friday when we asked Father Buhman if we could take our wife into St. Mary's Church to see how beautiful its new decorations are. When we went in we saw a young man kneeling in prayer. Happily, our presence did not disturb him. He was alone in the church when we went in and as we did not stay long, he was still kneeling when we went out. We do not know who he was, but that doesn't matter. We have the greatest respect for him taking his problem to the Lord. - Shelbina Democrat.

SERVICES LIST OCS PROGRAMS

Recruiters for U.S. armed services are constantly seeking officer material, the Catholic Digest points out. Each of the services has enlistment programs for commissioned officers-to-be. There are ten enlisted men in the Army for every officer. In the Navy, it's 8 to 1; in the Air Force, 7 to 1, and in the Marines it's 13 to 1. Weeding out is merciless in the officer programs. It has to be.

All five services have officer-candidate schools, 10 to 23 week training courses followed by commissions for graduates. The Marines, Navy, Air Force, and Coast Guard require college degrees for OCS. The Army will accept OCS enlistments from enlisted men with only high school diplomas, but requires a degree for OCS enlistment from civilian life.

Despite all the evidence TV can muster, we're unconvinced. We still say Jesse James was one of the bad guys.

It is possible that the nation's independent enterprisers could make even more of a contribution toward establishing a favorable balance of trade for the United States.

An analysis of the first 25,000 respondents to the 1967 continuous field survey of the National Federation of Independent Business shows that 4 per cent are engaged in producing and selling for export. Projected against the 4,500,000 independent business enterprises, this indicates that some 180,000 smaller firms are in a field commonly thought to be the exclusive domain of the giants.

However, it also appears that for a small business to engage in export business, the financing problem of doing business long distance is greater than doing business domestically. The data shows that while only 43 per cent of the independent firms confined to domestic operations applied during the past year for a bank loan, 58 per cent of those engaged in export needed bank loan assistance.

Also, while it could be assumed that any small business engaged in export would be located on the seaboards, the fitures show the firms so engaged fairly evenly distributed regionally.

The following table shows the per cent of independent businesses in each region engaged in export, the percentage of those so engaged who have sought bank loans as compared to those firms in each region not engaged in export who applied for bank loans.

The business export is shown in the following order in percentages: Firms Exporting, Exporters Applied for Bank Loans and Non - exporters who Applied for Bank Loans.

New England	4	54	46
Middle Atlantic	6	57	36
East N. Central	4	56	42
West N. Central	2	50	48
South Atlantic	4	67	45
East S. Central	2	42	41
West S. Central	3	57	45
Mountain	2	87	49
Pacific	5	68	42

Presumably, these smaller firms engaged in export contribute entirely to the credit side of the balance of trade as unlike many of the big U.S. industrial complexes they do not operate plants abroad which also ship goods into the United States, as for example, the auto makers do.

However, financing of export business by the smaller firm is a substantial problem due to the length of time that working capital is tied up in the transactions.

A New England aluminum foundry reports that it is dropping its export activity as it is too cumbersome in relation to profits.

A Michigan firm engaged in making farm equipment employing ten people reports the foreign market is better than the domestic market, except that currency exchange and tariffs hurt. This firm believes enactment of the "plowback allowance" would be helpful.

A plastic manufacturer in Pennsylvania with 175 employees says that the Dept. of Commerce could make it easier for exporters and could also furnish more information. Ths same firm also feels that the Small Business Administration could cut a great deal of red tape in making loans.

A West Virginia firm employing 60 people engaged in export reports that when the minimum wage law came into affect, five employees had to be dropped because of price competition.

A metal fabricator in Florida reports that they have about reached their limit in effort due to the tightness of money and the shortage of skilled labor. This firm reports "government training programs in our area not producing fully trained men. The expectations these people have regarding position and salary are beyond reach. They are inadequately trained and come with the attitude they cannot be taught anymore."

From speciality foods to plowshares, the independent business engaged inexport trade is somewhat wary of what the future holds for this activity. And unlike many foreign nations, the American independent business is not given tax incentives for promoting an export business, nor is there any apparent concerted efforgby any government agency to make available to them sources of capital at inerest rates compatible with the problems of engaging in export.

The late President Kennedy shortly before his death was urging that special efforts be made to expand the export business, but before concrete plans were formulated he was assassinated.

Since that time, apparently, nothing has been carried forward to encourage American business, and especially the smaller firms, to either enter, or enlarge their export activities, although there seems ample evidence that these firms can find foreign markets for their products.

So far the data gathered indicates that the smaller American businessman is capable of, and willing, to enter into the export market with a minimum, if any, marketing help from government. What is apparently needed is a realistic approach to the application of income taxes to that part of a firm's business that is developed through exporting. There has been suggested that the export portion of a firm's business be excluded from all taxes, at least for a period of years until the overseas operations are on a firm footing.

AN ELDERLY plutocrat went to a rejuvenating expert and asked: "Can you make me 25 again?"

"Yes," was the reply, "But it will cost you $500."

"Can you make me 18?" asked the plutocrat.

"Yes, but that will cost you $2,500."

"I'll have the operation for 18," was the reply.

Six months later the expert called for his money.

"Nothing doing," said the patient. "I'm under age and if you say I'm not I'll sue you for fraud."

Doc. Duncan Says

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: Read an article that says the Supreme Court of California ruled 5 to 2 the people how a right to vote on the war. One judge held they only had a right to vote in municipal elections. That ruling would disqualify them to vote in State and National elections. That bird must be from Missouri.

Our forefathers provided us with the machinery to rub out any mistake we made in electing officials. Looks like if the people don't start rubbing out, they are gonna get rubbed out. Self defense and self preservation is the basic laws of nature. Seems like the people have lost control.

It may take some heroic measures to restore them to their constitutional rights, and since the conspiracy has no regard for the people's pocketbook, feelings, rights or what have you, any guy who takes the oath of office, then does an about face, then joins the conspiracy to cripple our constitution is an enemy of our nation and it's people and should be dealt with accordingly, immediately.

H.L. Hunt Says

STATE CHIEF JUSTICES SPEAK

The U.S. Supreme Court in recent years has returned numerous decisions which, whatever their intent, have had the effect of making it easier for criminals to escape the consequences of their wrongdoing. A resolution adopted by chief justices of the state courts at their recent conference in Honolulu is in glaring contrast to these decisions by a majority of the Supreme Court justices.

The resolution, adopted without dissent by the 45 chief justices attending the Honolulu meeting, took official note of the rising crime rate and the riots in our cities. Pointing out that 1967 has been a year of "unprecedented lawlessness and mob violence," the state justices declared the chief cause is "a lack of respect for the law and an utter disregard for its proper enforcement in the minds of a growing number of citizens. Furthermore, they suggested strongly that recent court laxities toward criminals, many of whom have been freed on technicalities after conviction, must be changed.

"It is as imperative," their resolution said, "that those who breach the law be punished as it is that the innocent be protected, and it is equally essential that it be demonstrated that the law-abiding citizen will receive protection of the law from the lawless as it is that guarantees will be afforded him who is accused of its breach." The chief justices then called for a reappraisal of laws and procedures which affect the work of police, prosecutors and courts. This resolution, truly judicial in nature, is recommended reading for justices of the U.S. Supreme Court. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) -- Things a business writer never would know if he kept his eyes closed:

A small restaurant on Manhattan's Lower East Side does a big business selling "Oriental pizza". A nearby delicatessen offers "kosher Chinese food."

The people of Nantucket Island, the "little gray lady of the sea," do a thriving business making, bottling and selling "Rose Hip Jelly" to offislanders. The jelly is made from the buds of roses which grow wild on the island.

A tiny New York art shop advertises: "Original oil paintings $3— no forgeries here."

New York, which estimates it removes 4½ pounds of garbage a day for each of its 8 million residents, spends more than $130 million a year on garbage removal. It also estimates it collects enough refuse each year to fill the 102-story Empire State Building 15 times.

And the chairman of one of the nation's large can companies estimates that each year Americans toss out more than 48 billion cans (more than 250 a person), 25 billion bottles and jars (135 a person), and 65 million metal and plastic caps and crowns (338 a person.)

Souvenir spoons commemorating famous world's fairs of the past are sought avidly by some antique collectors. But with demand for the spoons so great, some of the collectors are getting out of spoons and into the less crowded field of souvenir forks.

There are better ways of making a living than bank robbery. The American Bankers Association says at least 53 per cent of the gunmen who held up banks in 1965 and 1966 were captured and drew sentences ranging from eight years to death, with 14 years the average.

Some 35 million copies of comic books are sold in the United States each month, with the bulk being read by those between the ages of 5 and 18. About 90 per cent of the books have 32 pages plus covers, and sell for 12 cents.

Apricots, originating in China, were carried from Asia to Greece by Alexander the Great. The avocado was cultivated by Central American Indians for hundreds of years before it was taken to California by the Spaniards. The artichoke, whose name comes from Italian words meaning "pine cone", was introduced into Louisiana by the French. The pharoahs of Egypt considered mushrooms a great delicacy and in ancient Rome they were regarded as the "food of the gods".

When Christopher Columbus came to America there were no cows, so he brought some on his second voyage in 1493 to the islands of the West Indies. Last year, more than 120 billion pounds of milk was produced in the United States. It takes 21.1 pounds of whole milk to make one pound of butter.

In 1956, it was estimated that only 10 per cent of this nation's adults had ever bought an airline ticket. In 1966, a survey estimated the figure had risen to 42 per cent.

Dealers are cashing in on the public demand for old street signs to use as home furnishings. The signs, usually purchased from a city as it replaces them, retail for from $20 to $40.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Pan American foreign ministers, meeting in Washington this week, have an opportunity to boost the prestige of the organization of the American states so that it may rival -- or even surpass--- the effectiveness of the United Nations. Or they can let it get bogged down in the slough of complacency again.

Which way they go will depend on whom they elect as OAS secretary general. They can elect another chairwarmer, as they have now, or another statesman such as Lleras Camargo, ex-President of Colombia, or Carlos Davila, ex- President of Chile. Both made the Pan American Union a powerful force for better understanding and peace.

Several excellent candidates are available for the secretary-generalship, including Walter Guevara Arze, brilliant Bolivian foreign minister, and Marcos Falcon Briceno, former foreign minister of Venezuela who helped pilot that country through one of its most difficult periods after the Perez Jimenez dictatorship.

However, the ex-President of Ecuador, Galo Plaza, has by far the most experience in handling world trouble spots. He has been drafted by the United Nations as a trouble - shooter in Cyprus, in Lebanon when President Eisenhower landed troops there, and in the Congo.

Quite recently Galo Plaza went to Haiti, another potential trouble spot, to try to head off trouble before it breaks. The confidential plan which he recommended to the OAS is now partially in effect.

What President Johnson and the Pan American Presidents he conferred with last April are resolved to do is to prevent riots and war before they come to a boil. Galo Plaza is skilled at this.

His chief handicap is that he was born in New York, studied at the Universities of California and Maryland. This makes him pro-USA in the eyes of Latin America. However, the government of Peru, which does not have diplomatic relations with Ecuador, has recognized Galo Plaza's usefulness and said it would not object to him as secretary general of the OAS.

HUMPHREY HUMOR

Vice President Humphrey was giving a luncheon for President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy and introduced Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island.

"I have a secret which I hope Senator Pastore will not mind my divulging," said Humphrey. "He was born Giovanni O. Pastore. But, being a good Democrat, he changed his name to John O. Pastore when he came of age.

"You see, if he had left the 'Giovanni' in there his initials would have been GOP!"

TEMPERAMENTAL EV

Sen. Everett Dirksen's now-I'm - for - him - now - I'm - not game is coming to a head with commissioner Carl Bagge, the man Dirksen recommended for the federal power commission but now opposes.

For five long months, the senior senator from Illinois has blocked Bagge's confirmation, even though it was Dirksen who originally persuaded the President to appoint him.

Today (Sep. 26), however, Bagge's name will finally be pried out of the senate commerce committee by chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., and will be sent to the full senate for final action.

Inside reason for Dirksen's opposition to the man he recommended is understood to be the commissioner's backing of the "power reliability" bill providing for inter-ties between power companies so as to prevent blackouts such as paralyzed New York state two years ago. Midwest power companies don't like the bill as drafted by the federal power commission.

PRESS AND MONOPOLY

Newspaper publishers may be in for an all-important decision when U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson in Southern California hands down his decision in the Los Angeles Times antitrust case. He is expected to rule that the Times must sell the San Bernardino Sun, located in the Times circulation area.

In recent years many larger newspapers have acquired smaller newspapers, though most of them have gone outside their own circulation area. Thus the Philadelphia Bulletin has acquired the Santa Barbara News-Press on the West Coast, 3,000 miles away from Philadelphia. The Chicago Tribune has also acquired the Orlando Sentinel, about 2,000 miles away in Florida. The justice department sees no violation of the antitrust act in these purchases.

However, it took a different view of the purchase of the San Bernardino Sun by the L. A. Times because that meant a concentration of newspaper power in a relatively small, densely populated area.

This was why the L. A. Times was slapped with an antitrust suit. The decision by Judge Ferguson is expected to set newspaper history in the United States.

BRITISH COMPETITION

While American newspapers have diminished in number and news services have tended toward mergers, Reuthers, the British news agency, has invaded the American market with new and extensive coverage.

For the first time in history, Reuters is not relying on the Associated Press for domestic news coverage in the United States, but has established its own correspondents and bureaus from New York to the West Coast.

Reuters now serves 65 newspapers in the United States, and in these days of increasing news monopoly, plans to give American newsgathering agencies a run for their money.

Miss Donna Kathleen Cross Marries Arthur Lee Putnam

CHARLESTON -- The Rev. H. W. Chaney of the First Baptist church read the vows of the double ring marriage ceremony of Miss Donna Kathleen Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cross, and Arthur Lee Putnam, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Putnam, Sept. 3, at 2 p.m.

Two arrangements of yellow spider mums, gladioli, and greenery were on pedestals on either side of the alter. Two seven-branch candelabra with yellow tapers entwined with greenery were in the choir loft. Huckleberry and yellow candles decorated the choir railing, and yellow bows marked the pews. A kneeling bench was placed before the alter.

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a floor-length gown of allover peau de ange. The empire waistline was encircled with a bias band of peau de soie accented with a petite florete of lace at the center front and a tailored bow with streamers at the center back. The deep scalloped neckline dipped low in the back. Simulated pearls and sequins were embroidered on the front. The sheer sleeves were finished with hand-clipped scallops and closed with covered buttons and silk loops. Soft gathers across the back waist formed the fullness that swept to a swallow - tail chapel - length train. The controlled skirt was scalloped around the bottom of the gown and extended into the train. Her headdress was lace-covered petals outlined with pearls and accented with pearlized lilies of the valley. A shoulder-length bouffant veil of imported silk illusion was attached to the headdress. The bridal bouquet was a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Presson of Topeka, Kan., wore a gown of gold chiffon in the A-line fashion, with long sleeves, empire waistline and a satin bow at the waist. Her headdress was a ribbon bow with an imported silk illusion veil. The bridesmaids, Miss Jeannie Phillips of Sedgewickville, Miss Marcia Cross and Miss Susan Cross of Portageville, and Miss Janie Vandivort of Sikeston, wore gowns fashioned the same as the matron of honor, only maize yellow. All carried cascades of yellow mums.

Candlelighters were Randy Cross, brother of the bride, and Dana Garrett of Steele. Ringbearer was Johnny Cross, brother of the bride, and the flower girl was Patricia Bowman of Sikeston, cousin of the groom.

The groom's best man was John Goodin. Groomsmen were John Rigdon of Cape Girardeau, Gary Dawson Cross of Portageville, and Clayton Vandivort of Sikeston.

Boyd Atteberry, Clarke Atteberry, Lanie Black, Donald Patrick, Blair Moran and Tommy Putnam, brother of the groom, served as ushers.

Soloist was John Goodin, who sang "Hand and Heart," and "The Lord's Prayer," and recited Elizabeth Barrett Browning's "How Do I Love Thee?" He was accompanied on the organ by Miss Susan Brown.

Mrs. Cross, mother of the bride, was attired in a wine-colored A-line dress with a mandarin collar closed with ornamental buttons and an empire waistline. Her accessories were dark rose and her corsage was a pink orchid. Mrs. Putnam, the groom's mother, chose an ensemble of green imported lace with matching accessories. Her corsage was yellow cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. E. R. Putnam Sr. and Mrs. A. L. Waller of Sikeston, the groom's grandmothers, had corsages of yellow roses.

A reception followed in the education building. The table, attended by the matron of honor and the bridesmaids, was covered with a white cloth overlaid with yellow net and caught at the corners with silver streamers.

On the table were the four-tiered cake decorated in yellow and white, silver candelabra entwined with yellow roses and a silver punch service and silver coffee service.

Mrs. Ray Putnam attended the guest register.

After a wedding trip to Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Putnam will be at home in Cape Girardeau, where they will be students at Southeast Missouri State College this fall. Both are graduates of Charleston high school.

At the municipal airport where I work, a private airplane called the control tower: "Kansas City Tower, you might inform the TWA plane which is about to take off from the north end that the object near my position that looks like a rock is really a turtle on the runway."

TWA 707: Tower, we heard that transmission. Understand. One turtle, crossing runway.

Tower: Based on available pilot reports, turtle's course is oriented southeast, heading toward Gate Five.

TWA 707: Kansas City Tower, can you give us info on turtle's speed and estimated time of runway clearance?

Tower: Computer calculations indicate turtle's speed around 200 feet an hour - may be less in this quartering headwind. If present course and speed are maintained, runway should be clear in eight minutes.

TWA 707: Unable to wait due to fuel depletion. Will employ evasive action on takeoff roll.

Tower: Roger, TWA. Cleared for takeoff. Be on alert for wake turbulence behind departing turtle.

Miss Donna Kathleen Cross Marries Arthur Lee Putnam

CHARLESTON -- The Rev. H. W. Chaney of the First Baptist church read the vows of the double ring marriage ceremony of Miss Donna Kathleen Cross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cross, and Arthur Lee Putnam, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Putnam, Sept. 3, at 2 p.m.

Two arrangements of yellow spider mums, gladioli, and greenery were on pedestals on either side of the alter. Two seven-branch candelabra with yellow tapers entwined with greenery were in the choir loft. Huckleberry and yellow candles decorated the choir railing, and yellow bows marked the pews. A kneeling bench was placed before the alter.

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a floor-length gown of allover peau de ange. The empire waistline was encircled with a bias band of peau de soie accented with a petite florete of lace at the center front and a tailored bow with streamers at the center back. The deep scalloped neckline dipped low in the back. Simulated pearls and sequins were embroidered on the front. The sheer sleeves were finished with hand-clipped scallops and closed with covered buttons and silk loops. Soft gathers across the back waist formed the fullness that swept to a swallow - tail chapel - length train. The controlled skirt was scalloped around the bottom of the gown and extended into the train. Her headdress was lace-covered petals outlined with pearls and accented with pearlized lilies of the valley. A shoulder-length bouffant veil of imported silk illusion was attached to the headdress. The bridal bouquet was a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Presson of Topeka, Kan., wore a gown of gold chiffon in the A-line fashion, with long sleeves, empire waistline and a satin bow at the waist. Her headdress was a ribbon bow with an imported silk illusion veil. The bridesmaids, Miss Jeannie Phillips of Sedgewickville, Miss Marcia Cross and Miss Susan Cross of Portageville, and Miss Janie Vandivort of Sikeston, wore gowns fashioned the same as the matron of honor, only maize yellow. All carried cascades of yellow mums.

Candlelighters were Randy Cross, brother of the bride, and Dana Garrett of Steele. Ringbearer was Johnny Cross, brother of the bride, and the flower girl was Patricia Bowman of Sikeston, cousin of the groom.

The groom's best man was John Goodin. Groomsmen were John Rigdon of Cape Girardeau, Gary Dawson Cross of Portageville, and Clayton Vandivort of Sikeston.

Boyd Atteberry, Clarke Atteberry, Lanie Black, Donald Patrick, Blair Moran and Tommy Putnam, brother of the groom, served as ushers.

Soloist was John Goodin, who sang "Hand and Heart," and "The Lord's Prayer," and recited Elizabeth Barrett Browning's "How Do I Love Thee?" He was accompanied on the organ by Miss Susan Brown.

Mrs. Cross, mother of the bride, was attired in a wine-colored A-line dress with a mandarin collar closed with ornamental buttons and an empire waistline. Her accessories were dark rose and her corsage was a pink orchid. Mrs. Putnam, the groom's mother, chose an ensemble of green imported lace with matching accessories. Her corsage was yellow cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. E. R. Putnam Sr. and Mrs. A. L. Waller of Sikeston, the groom's grandmothers, had corsages of yellow roses.

A reception followed in the education building. The table, attended by the matron of honor and the bridesmaids, was covered with a white cloth overlaid with yellow net and caught at the corners with silver streamers.

On the table were the four-tiered cake decorated in yellow and white, silver candelabra entwined with yellow roses and a silver punch service and silver coffee service.

Mrs. Ray Putnam attended the guest register.

After a wedding trip to Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Putnam will be at home in Cape Girardeau, where they will be students at Southeast Missouri State College this fall. Both are graduates of Charleston high school.

Rehearsal dinner for the wedding party was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Putnam at the Mid-Towner restaurant at Sikeston on Sept. 2. Yellow chrysanthemums in silver bowls decorated the tables. Joan Marie Groves to Wed Johnny Diamond Nov. 11

BERTRAND -- Mr. and Mrs. W. C. "Dub" Groves announce the engagement of their daughter, Joan Marie, to Sgt. Johnny Diamond, son of Mrs. Birdie Curry of Sikeston.

Miss Groves was graduated from Charleston high school in 1966 and is attending Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

Sergeant Diamond graduated from Sikeston high school in 1965 and is serving in the marines at the Great Lakes, Ill., Naval hospital.

The couple will be married Nov. 11 in the First General Baptist church.

At the municipal airport where I work, a private airplane called the control tower: "Kansas City Tower, you might inform the TWA plane which is about to take off from the north end that the object near my position that looks like a rock is really a turtle on the runway."

TWA 707: Tower, we heard that transmission. Understand. One turtle, crossing runway.

Tower: Based on available pilot reports, turtle's course is oriented southeast, heading toward Gate Five.

TWA 707: Kansas City Tower, can you give us info on turtle's speed and estimated time of runway clearance?

Tower: Computer calculations indicate turtle's speed around 200 feet an hour - may be less in this quartering headwind. If present course and speed are maintained, runway should be clear in eight minutes.

TWA 707: Unable to wait due to fuel depletion. Will employ evasive action on takeoff roll.

Tower: Roger, TWA. Cleared for takeoff. Be on alert for wake turbulence behind departing turtle.

NATIONAL LEAGUE'S PARK of the baseball World Series is all set, even though the American League scramble probably won't be decided until the last minute. Busch Stadium, home of the pennant-winning Cardinals, will be jammed with more than 50,000 fans for the St. Louis Series games.

Angels Aim To Help...Someone

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The key to the American League pennant puzzle rests in the hot little halos of California's innocent-looking Angels. And don't they know it.

Bill Rigney's Angels ran right over Minnesota 9-2 Monday, dropping the Twins into a tie with idle Boston. Third-place Chicago, off Monday, is one-half game behind.

The ambitious Angels play the Twins again today and Wednesday and then finish the season with four games against fourth-place Detroit, which ran into Al Downing's four-hit pitching and lost 2-0 at New York. The Tigers are 1½ games behind with five to play.

In the only other American League game played Monday, Baltimore slipped past Washington 3-2. In the National League, San Francisco nipped New York 2-1 in 10 innings, Houston edged Philadelphia 4-3 and Pittsburgh shaded Los Angeles 2-1 in 11 innings.

"I don't care who wins it," smiled Rigney, surveying his club's steady diet of Minnesota and Detroit for the final week. "All I know is we were going to help somebody lose it." Then Rigney told how he prepared for Showdown Week.

"I rested Don Mincher, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop at Kansas City Sunday to get ready for OUR World Series. We can't win the pennant, but we can spoil it for the Tigers and Twins."

Fregosi and Rick Reichardt did most of Monday's spoiling against Minnesota. Each had three hits in the first four innings as the Angels rocked Jim Merritt and Dave Boswell for seven quick runs.

California nicked Merritt for a run in the first on consecutive singles by Fregosi, Richardt and Bubba Morton. Then Fregosi socked a two-run triple as the Angels scored three in the second.

Four straight singles by Fregosi, Richardt, Mincher and Jimmie Hall helped build a three-run fourth as California wrapped it up early.

The Twins chased California starter George Brunet in the fourth, scoring two runs on four straight singles, but Jack Hamilton stopped that rally and got credit for his ninth victory. Curt Simmons finished up.

Downing retired the first 11 Tigers he faced and allowed only one hit over the first six innings.

The Yankee left-hander also started New York's winning rally when he drew a third inning walk against loser Earl Wilson, 22-11.

He moved to second on an infield out and raced home on rookie Jerry Kenney's single. Then Mickey Mantle walked and Joe Pepitone singled Kenney across.

It was Downing's 14th victory, a career high. He struck out six and walked two. Al Kaline had two of Detroit's four singles against him.

Curt Motton's ninth inning single scored Brooks Robinson with Baltimore's winning run against Washington. Robinson was hit by a pitch opening the ninth and raced to third on Curt Blefary's hit.

The pennant race resumes today with California at Minnesota and Cleveland at Boston, and tonight with Chicago at Kansas City and Detroit at New York.

Ole Misss Tumbled

MEMPHIS, - In a football weekend that featured some astonishing upsets Memphis State University contanly did its share. The Tigers, a two-touchdown underdog rocked Ole Miss 27-17 to get their season off to the best start ever.

Nearly every one of the 40 players who saw action for Memphis State had his big moment, but some of the more obvious stars were:

Nick Pappas, 190-pound tailback from Corning, N. Y. The speedy junior fieled an Ole Miss kickoff at his seven-yard line and raced 93 yards for a touchdown that put the Tigers ahead 7-3 at halftime. The kickoff return is a new MSU record.

Ricky Thurow, 175-pound sophomore quarterback from North Little Rock, Ark. The former prep All-America got his baptism against the Rebels and responded with a 24-yard dart to the end zone that produced the winning touchdown with six minutes remaining.

Bob Baxter, 185-pound senior wingback from Levittown, Pa. A seasoned veteran of two-years of college football warfare, Baxter turned in the single biggest play of his career when he fielded an Ole Miss punt and fled 75 yards for the touchdown that clinched the Memphis State victory. On the other side of the coin, he punted seven times himself, averaged 38 yards and the Rebels didn't have a single yard return.

Art Brumit, 205-pound junior linebacker from Kingsport, Tenn. With Ole Miss leading 17-14 and the Rebs' Julian Fagan back to punt late in the fourth period, Brumit broke through and nailed Fagan for a 13-yard loss. The Tigers scored the winning TD two plays later. Brumit turned in some other big plays, including a 25-yard runback of a pass interception.

Francis Winkler, a 230-pound senior tackle from Memphis. He showed why he made several pre-season All-America checklists with a tremendous all-round game that included 10 tackles and nine assists. "Winkler was just great," said Coach Billy Murphy.

Dale Brady, 200-pound senior wingback from Madison, Tenn., and Russell Denof, 185-pound sophomore tailback from Camden, N. J. They collaborated on a play that got the Tigers the ball on the Ole Miss two-yard line. The Rebels' Billy Jones fielded a punt, dropped the ball, started to pick it up and was knocked sideways by Brady. Denof jumped on the ball and seconds later the Tigers had an unexpectedly easy touchdown.

A NIGHT OF FIRSTS - Every one of the 50,414 spectators was aware that this was Memphis State's first victory over Ole Miss in 22 tries. But virtually unnoticed went the fact that it was also the first time the Rebels lost an opener under Coach John Vaught. Not since Vaught became coach in 1947 had the Rebs dropped their first game of the season. Nine times the opening victim was Memphis State.

WHO'S AHEAD? - The score changed hands six times in Saturdays night's game. Ole Miss scored first on a field goal. Then it was Memphis State 7-3, Ole Miss 10-7, Memphis State 14-10, Ole Miss 17-14, Memphis State 20-17 and 27-17.

Long runs were almost commonplace. The Tigers' Nick Pappas started things with a 93-yard kickoff return. The Rebs' Bo Bowen returned the compliment to the tune of 89 yards. MSU'S Bob Baxter found the new punt-return rule favorable with a 75-yard romp. After all that Rick Thurow's 24-yard jaunt for the winning TD looked like a plunge.

The Tigers set an NCAA record last year by allowing opponents only 1.1 yards per runback. Despite the new rule that keeps linemen home until the ball is kicked, Ole Miss had zero return yards on 10 Memphis State punts.

THE BEARCATS ARE COMING- Memphis State hopes to make it two in a row this week at the expense of Cincinnati. The teams kick off at 7:30 Saturday night at Memorial Stadium. The Bearcats have a new coach in Homer Rice, former aide at Oklahoma. Rice got off on the wrong foot is his opener. Losing to Dayton 27-13. The Memphis State-Cincinnati series got started last year with the Tigers taking a 26-14 win.

Back, Lineman Of The Week

Three players were selected as stars of Friday night's 27-0 football victory for Sikeston high school over Charleston.

Two defensive linemen were named, Riley Gross and Bob McCord. Terry Bryant was selected as the defensive back of the week.

Bryant, who wears number 21 started his first game of the season in the backfield and picked off one of the opposition's passes and was in on numerous tackles.

SHS football coach, Bill Sapp, overhauled his defensive backfield before last week's game and the change enabled the Bulldogs to check the passing combination of Charles Babb, who is tabbed as the top quarterback in the conference.

Bryant is an 145-pound junior and is listed as a right halfback on the roster.

Gross is a 175-pound junior and is listed as a fullback and wears number 33.

McCord, the only senior named to this week's star list weighed in a 192 pounds and is listed as a left end on the rost. McCord wears number 85.

Northern Battle Continues; Dexter Undefeated In South

Conference encounters highlight Friday night's high school football schedule for Southeast Missouri. Six of the eight games on tab will be in conference play.

As the area teams move into the fourth week of action only four remain undefeated, three in the northern division and Dexter in the southern division of the Southeast Missouri high school football conference. In the north, Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau Central and Sikeston boast 3-0 records with Bluff and Sikeston holding 2-0 conference marks. Cape has yet to open its conference schedule.

In the south, which was expected to be all Malden at the beginning, finds Dexter sporting a 3-0 seasonal mark with a 2-0 conference slate. The Bearcats set Caruthersville aside last week and moved into undisputed possession of the conference lead.

Of Friday's six conference encounters, three will be played in each division with the Cape Central Tigers and Chaffee the only teams in the northern and southern divisions respectively not seeing action with conference foes.

Cape, who has yet to tackle a conference contender this season is host to St. Louis county power Kirkwood at Houck field stadium while Chaffee takes on the Ilmo - Scott City Rams on the Red Devil turf.

Conference action in the north will center at Jackson, Sikeston and Charleston. Jackson will be host to John Brown and Company from Poplar Bluff while Sikeston meets the winless Kennett tribe on the Bulldog field and Charleston hopes to rebound from Sikeston's devastating whipping when it plays Perryville.

In the southern division, Maldren treks to Caruthersville, Portageville visits the East Prairie Eagles and Dexter Meets Hayti on the Indian's territory.

Portageville, a southern division member, is leading the district teams in scoring with a 104 points' offense. The Bulldogs opened their season with a rousing 64 point performance at Manila, Ark.

Poplar Bluff with 100 offensive points leads the north with Sikeston second and third overall with 75 offensive points.

Poplar Bluff has yielded only 13 points this season and Sikeston's surprising defense has given up only 14.

Chaffee leads the district in yielding the most points to its opposition, giving up 67 in three outings.

Charleston and Caruthersville who had failed to yield an opposing offense score until last Friday's encounters were hit for 27 and 20 points respectively and ended their undefeated play, both suffering conference setbacks.

The Bluejays of Herbert Marshall suffered their conference debut loss while Perryville and Kennett were handed their second conference setbacks against no victories.

Malden's injured signal caller, Scott Norrid, is expected to be back in action after sitting out last week's encounter with Gideon.

The waves southern conference hopes are on the line when they visit Tiger Stadium in Caruthersville Friday.

Malden must win to stay in contention with the division leader, Dexter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has returned to the golf course— and nearly beaned a fellow player in the process.

Members of the Burning Tree Country Club in nearby Maryland said the President's first drive Saturday veered into an adjoining fairway and narrowly missed another golfer. A second drive was much better they said.

Johnson was in a foursome with Rep. George Mahon, D.Tex., Clark Clifford, a Washington lawyer; and his son-in-law, Patrick Nugent of Austin, Tex.

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP) — Sharron Washington, a recent cut by the Houston Oilers of the American Football League, checked in Monday to seek a backfield position with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League.

The 6-foot, 190-pound Washington played split end and halfback at Northeast Missouri State.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Center Earl Ingarfield ended an 11-day holdout Monday by signing a two-year contract with the Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League.

MONTREAL (AP) — Nine of the top 3-year-old pacers in North America will go to the post Sunday in the $27,300 Trans-Canada Pace. The field includes Nardin's Byrd, who was second in last week's Little Brown Jug.

WINNIPEG (AP) — The Winnipeg Blue Bomber of the Canadian Football League announced Monday the release of Marty Rosen from the University of South Carolina and the signing of Lou Confessori, a quarterback and defensive back who played on the taxi squad of the Washington Redskins last season.

Major Shake Down

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unexpected developments involving Houston, Michigan State, Alabama and Miami of Florida, among others, resulted in a wholesale shifting of positions from second to 10th in the latest Associated Press college football poll.

There could well be a scramble from top to bottom next week.

That's because the No.1 team, Notre Dame, faces 10th-ranked Purdue on the Boilermakers' field while runner-up Southern California tackles what appears to be an unusually-weak Michigan State team this Saturday.

The Spartans plummeted from third place all the way out of the Top Ten after being thrashed 37-7 by Houston. The Cougars took over the No.3 spot.

Alabama, tied 37-37 by Florida State, dropped from second to ninth place. Miami, upset by Northwestern 12-7, slipped out of the ratings. The Hurricanes were eighth a week ago.

Notre Dame, the 1966 national titleholder, maintained a solid lead in this week's pool of 41 sports writers and broadcasters on the AP's national panel. The Irish collected 31 votes for first place and 390 points on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for second etc.

Southern California's 17-13 triumph over Texas resulted in the Trojans' advancing from fourth to second and the Longhorns dropping from fifth to eighth.

UCLA, a 40-8 winner over Pitt, climbed from sixth to fourth. Georgia advanced from seventh to fifth after trampling Mississippi State 30-0 while Colorado moved up to sixth, a gain of three positions, by whipping Oregon, 17-13.

Nebraska, although idle, zoomed from 10th to seventh. Purdue replaced Miami in the rankings after defeating Texas A&M, 24-20 in its opening game.

In other games involving teams in the first 10 this weekend, Houston faces Wake Forest, UCLA takes on Washington State, Georgia meets Clemson, Nebraska plays Minnesota, Texas faces Texas Tech and Alabama plays Southern Mississippi. Colorado is not scheduled.

The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses and points on a 10-9-8-etc basis:

1. Notre Dame (31)	390
2. Southern Cal (4)	340
3. Houston (6)	279
4. UCLA	275
5. Georgia	260
6. Colorado	118
7. Nebraska	79
8. Texas	76
9. Alabama	75
10. Purdue	70

The Rebels' Billy Jones fielded a punt, dropped the ball, started to pick it up and was knocked sideways by Brady. Denof jumped on the ball and seconds later the Tigers had an unexpectedly easy touchdown.

A NIGHT OF FIRSTS - Every one of the 50,414 spectators was aware that this was Memphis State's first victory over Ole Miss in 22 tries. But virtually unnoticed went the fact that it was also the first time the Rebels lost an opener under Coach John Vaught. Not since Vaught became coach in 1947 had the Rebs dropped their first game of the season. Nine times the opening victim was Memphis State.

WHO'S AHEAD? - The score changed hands six times in Saturdays night's game. Ole Miss scored first on a field goal. Then it was Memphis State 7-3, Ole Miss 10-7, Memphis State 14-10, Ole Miss 17-14, Memphis State 20-17 and 27-17.

Long runs were almost commonplace. The Tigers' Nick Pappas started things with a 93-yard kickoff return. The Rebs' Bo Bowen returned the compliment to the tune of 89 yards. MSU'S Bob Baxter found the new punt-return rule favorable with a 75-yard romp. After all that Rick Thurow's 24-yard jaunt for the winning TD looked like a plunge.

The Tigers set an NCAA record last year by allowing opponents only 1.1 yards per runback. Despite the new rule that keeps linemen home until the ball is kicked, Ole Miss had zero return yards on 10 Memphis State punts.

THE BEARCATS ARE COMING- Memphis State hopes to make it two in a row this week at the expense of Cincinnati. The teams kick off at 7:30 Saturday night at Memorial Stadium. The Bearcats have a new coach in Homer Rice, former aide at Oklahoma. Rice got off on the wrong foot is his opener. Losing to Dayton 27-13. The Memphis State-Cincinnati series got started last year with the Tigers taking a 26-14 win.

Back, Lineman Of The Week

Three players were selected as stars of Friday night's 27-0 football victory for Sikeston high school over Charleston.

Two defensive linemen were named, Riley Gross and Bob McCord. Terry Bryant was selected as the defensive back of the week.

Bryant, who wears number 21 started his first game of the season in the backfield and picked off one of the opposition's passes and was in on numerous tackles.

SHS football coach, Bill Sapp, overhauled his defensive backfield before last week's game and the change enabled the Bulldogs to check the passing combination of Charles Babb, who is tabbed as the top quarterback in the conference.

Bryant is an 145-pound junior and is listed as a right halfback on the roster.

Gross is a 175-pound junior and is listed as a fullback and wears number 33.

McCord, the only senior named to this week's star list weighed in a 192 pounds and is listed as a left end on the rost. McCord wears number 85.

Northern Battle Continues; Dexter Undefeated In South

Conference encounters highlight Friday night's high school football schedule for Southeast Missouri. Six of the eight games on tab will be in conference play.

As the area teams move into the fourth week of action only four remain undefeated, three in the northern division and Dexter in the southern division of the Southeast Missouri high school football conference. In the north, Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau Central and Sikeston boast 3-0 records with Bluff and Sikeston holding 2-0 conference marks. Cape has yet to open its conference schedule.

In the south, which was expected to be all Malden at the beginning, finds Dexter sporting a 3-0 seasonal mark with a 2-0 conference slate. The Bearcats set Caruthersville aside last week and moved into undisputed possession of the conference lead.

Of Friday's six conference encounters, three will be played in each division with the Cape Central Tigers and Chaffee the only teams in the northern and southern divisions respectively not seeing action with conference foes.

Cape, who has yet to tackle a conference contender this season is host to St. Louis county power Kirkwood at Houck field stadium while Chaffee takes on the Ilmo - Scott City Rams on the Red Devil turf.

Conference action in the north will center at Jackson, Sikeston and Charleston. Jackson will be host to John Brown and Company from Poplar Bluff while Sikeston meets the winless Kennett tribe on the Bulldog field and Charleston hopes to rebound from Sikeston's devastating whipping when it plays Perryville.

In the southern division, Malden treks to Caruthersville, Portageville visits the East Prairie Eagles and Dexter Meets Hayti on the Indian's territory.

Portageville, a southern division member, is leading the district teams in scoring with a 104 points' offense. The Bulldogs opened their season with a rousing 64 point performance at Manila, Ark.

Poplar Bluff with 100 offensive points leads the north with Sikeston second and third overall with 75 offensive points.

Poplar Bluff has yielded only 13 points this season and Sikeston's surprising defense has given up only 14.

Chaffee leads the district in yielding the most points to its opposition, giving up 67 in three outings.

Charleston and Caruthersville who had failed to yield an opposing offense score until last Friday's encounters were hit for 27 and 20 points respectively and ended their undefeated play, both suffering conference setbacks.

The Bluejays of Herbert Marshall suffered their conference debut loss while Perryville and Kennett were handed their second conference setbacks against no victories.

Malden's injured signal caller, Scott Norrid, is expected to be back in action after sitting out last week's encounter with Gideon.

The waves southern conference hopes are on the line when they visit Tiger Stadium in Caruthersville Friday.

Malden must win to stay in contention with the division leader, Dexter.

Major Shake Down

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unexpected developments involving Houston, Michigan State, Alabama and Miami of Florida, among others, resulted in a wholesale shifting of positions from second to 10th in the latest Associated Press college football poll.

There could well be a scramble from top to bottom next week.

That's because the No.1 team, Notre Dame, faces 10th-ranked Purdue on the Boilermakers' field while runner-up Southern California tackles what appears to be an unusually-weak Michigan State team this Saturday.

The Spartans plummeted from third place all the way out of the Top Ten after being thrashed 37-7 by Houston. The Cougars took over the No.3 spot.

Alabama, tied 37-37 by Florida State, dropped from second to ninth place. Miami, upset by Northwestern 12-7, slipped out of the ratings. The Hurricanes were eighth a week ago.

Notre Dame, the 1966 national titleholder, maintained a solid lead in this week's pool of 41 sports writers and broadcasters on the AP's national panel. The Irish collected 31 votes for first place and 390 points on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for second etc.

Southern California's 17-13 triumph over Texas resulted in the Trojans' advancing from fourth to second and the Longhorns dropping from fifth to eighth.

UCLA, a 40-8 winner over Pitt, climbed from sixth to fourth. Georgia advanced from seventh to fifth after trampling Mississippi State 30-0 while Colorado moved up to sixth, a gain of three positions, by whipping Oregon, 17-13.

Nebraska, although idle, zoomed from 10th to seventh. Purdue replaced Miami in the rankings after defeating Texas A&M, 24-20 in its opening game.

In other games involving teams in the first 10 this weekend, Houston faces Wake Forest, UCLA takes on Washington State, Georgia meets Clemson, Nebraska plays Minnesota, Texas faces Texas Tech and Alabama plays Southern Mississippi. Colorado is not scheduled.

The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses and points on a 10-9-8-etc basis:

1. Notre Dame (31)	390
2. Southern Cal (4)	340
3. Houston (6)	279
4. UCLA	275
5. Georgia	260
6. Colorado	118
7. Nebraska	79
8. Texas	76
9. Alabama	75
10. Purdue	70

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has returned to the golf course—and nearly beaned a fellow player in the process.

Members of the Burning Tree Country Club in nearby Maryland said the President's first drive Saturday veered into an adjoining fairway and narrowly missed another golfer. A second drive was much better they said.

Johnson was in a foursome with Rep. George Mahon, D.Tex., Clark Clifford, a Washington lawyer; and his son-in-law, Patrick Nugent of Austin, Tex.

HAMILTON, Ont. (AP) — Sharron Washington, a recent cut by the Houston Oilers of the American Football League, checked in Monday to seek a backfield position with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League.

The 6-foot, 190-pound Washington played split end and halfback at Northeast Missouri State.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Center Earl Ingarfield ended an 11-day holdout Monday by signing a two-year contract with the Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League.

MONTREAL (AP) — Nine of the top 3-year-old pacers in North America will go to the post Sunday in the $27,300 Trans-Canada Pace. The field includes Nardin's Byrd, who was second in last week's Little Brown Jug.

WINNIPEG (AP) — The Winnipeg Blue Bomber of the Canadian Football League announced Monday the release of Marty Rosen from the University of South Carolina and the signing of Lou Confessori, a quarterback and defensive back who played on the taxi squad of the Washington Redskins last season.

New splendor in Chevrolet-built

'68 Chevelle Concours Sport Sedan

In addition to 14 models in the 1968 Chevelle line is this optional Concours Sport Sedan. This ultra-luxurious car like others in the Chevelle family features a new instrument panel, new lattice radiator grille, special interiors and exterior ornamental trim. The Concours Sedan is built on a 116-inch wheelbase, has special sound insulation throughout and concealed windshield wipers with articulated left blade. The new Chevrolet-built passenger cars will be on display September 21.

EXHAUST EMISSION CONTROL ON ALL MODELS

Exhaust emission control equipment, added for all engines on 1968 Chevrolets, consists of two different designs.

In general, for models equipped with automatic transmissions, emission control is achieved by a new Controlled Combustion System (CCS). It includes temperature controlled carburetor inlet air, special carburetor calibration and ignition timing changes.

Models with manual transmissions use an improved version of the Air Injection Reactor (A.I.R.) previously produces for California models. In A.I.R. air is pumped into the exhaust manifold and reacts with unburned gases to produce low emission levels.

ANTI - THEFT PROTECTION FOR ALL MODELS

New anti-theft provisions are included in a theft protection package for all Chevrolet models.

Included is a warning buzzer which sounds whenever the driver opens the car door and the key is left in the ignition in either the "off" or "accessory" position.

A vehicle identification number on the instrument panel is clearly visible through the windshield. There is vehicle identification on every engine and transmission and new ignition key and lock combinations.

BUCKET SEATS AVAILABLE ON ALL 6 CHEVROLET LINES

Bucket seats are optional on the Caprice Coupe and a "Super Sport" option on the Impala coupes and convertible in the regular Chevrolet line.

On Chevelle, they are optional on SS 396 and Malibu sport coupes and convertibles.

On Chevy II bucket seats are optional for the Nova coupe.

Bucket seats are standard on Corvette and Camaro models and on Monza models of Corvair.

GLASS REAR WINDOW ON CHEVELLE CONVERTIBLES

A glass rear window is introduced for 1968 on Chevelle convertibles. It previosly has been available only on regular Chevrolet convertibles.

SPORT MODELS NEARLY HALF OF TOTAL

Nineteen of Chevrolet's 41 models for 1968 are "sport models" . . . two- and four-door hardtops and convertibles.

This high percentage of sport models underscores their growth in customer popularity in recent years.

REAR STOWAGE FOR CHEVELLE WAGONS

Concealed rear stowage compartments -- popular on regular Chevrolet two-seat station wagons, are added in 1968 to all wagons in the Chevelle line except the base Nomad.

Chevrolet offers a total of 11 station wagons for 1968. . . seven in the regular Chevrolet line and four Chevelle wagons.

NEW CHEVY II OPTIONS

A stereo tape sound system and Four-Season air conditioning are available for the first time on 1968 Chevy II models.

ACCESSORIES & OPTIONS

DETROIT -- Light monitoring and power door lock systems plus added availability of popular stereo tape players highlight a list of more than 400 options and accessories offered on 1968 Chevrolet cars.

The light monitoring system tells the driver at a glance if important front and ear lights and signals are working. The fiber optic principle is used to "pipe" the actual lamp light to jeweled indicators mounted on front fenders and just below the rear window. The system is offered on Chevrolets, Chevelles and Camaros and one with indicators mounted on a console is standard on Corvettes.

The power door lock system, for all regular Chevrolets, allows the driver or front seat passenger to lock all doors simultaneously by a master control lever. Vacuum power iu furnished from the manifold.

Stereo tape players, rapidly growing in popularity since introduction by Chevrolet a year ago, are offered in 1968 on all lines except Corvettes. The line-up includes a new "mini-stereo" to complement the redesigned interior styling of the Chevelle and the Chevy II. Chevrolet has also extended the availability of the Cruisemaster -- a push-button highway speed control device -- to some light-duty pickup trucks.

The option and accessory list also features a wide variety of air conditioning units; numerous exterior and interior trims and convenience items; specially packaged accessory groups for operating convenience, appearance and auxiliary lighting; special equipment for traveling and trailering; and a number of highway safety aids.

TOURISM RECEIVES NEW DIRECTION

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.--Transition in state government can be a hectic proposition, and the transfer of Missouri tourism programs from the Department of Commerce and Industrial Development to the newly created Department of Tourism is no exception.

The state's new tourism director, Will Davis, has been wearing two hats --- that of his present post as press secretary to Gov. Warren Hearnes, and his new one which "officially" begins Oct. 13.

But even before the members of the commission had been announced Davis had been obtaining offices in the old Montgomery Ward building in Jefferson City and planning for a transition period which he said will continue through Jan. 1.

Although there will be no fanfare when the commission assumes its duties for the first time, an intensive study will be underway to determine where the state has not met the needs of promoting its tourism industry, now estimated to be the second largest industry in Missouri.

New commission members were named last week by Gov Hearnes, President Pro-Tem of the Missouri Senate John Joynt, and House Speaker James Godfrey. They include:

Lester Dill, Republican from Sullivan and owner of Meramec Caverns; Peter Herschend, Republican from Branson, owner of Silver Dollar City and Marble Cave and president of the South Ozark Lakes Assn.; Mark Todd, Democrat from Columbia and chairman of the Motel Association legislative committee; Jack Dickerson, Democrat from Camdenton and next president of the Lake of the Ozarks Assn.; Harold Koplar, Democrat from St. Louis, owner of the Chase Park Plaza, and a major stockholder in the Lodge of the Four Seasons on the Lake of the Ozarks.

Senate and House members include: Sen. John Joynt (D-St. Louis), Sen. Noel Cox (R-Ozark), Rep. Ruben A. Shapeler (D-Butler) and Rep. Robert E. Young (R-Cartharge).

PSC TO STUDY RAIL SERVICES

The Missouri Public Service Commission soon will hear arguments from representatives of the Missouri Pacific and the Norfolk and Western railroads to allow them to discontinue their passenger services in the state.

The commission grants the authority to operate passenger trains in the state and in turn must conduct hearings on petitions to discontinue such services.

Of the approximately 25 remaining railroad companies operating in Missouri, five have terminated all or a large part of their passenger services, with MoPac and the Norfolk and Western seeking to join the list.

GROUP TO STUDY STATE ELECTION LAWS

Missouri's first major study of election laws and procedures will begin Oct. 13 when, under new statutory authority, 15 legislators and private citizens will be named to an election law study commission.

Under a bill passed in the last session of the General Assembly, this commission is directed to update and clarify many of the state's antiquated laws governing elections, including the possible recommendation of electronic voting equipment for the state.

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, also a member of the commission and a major supporter of the bill which established it, said even today many election clerks and officials cannot be certain whether they have a right answer when they refer to election rules and regulations since many overlap and older ones dating back to the nineteenth century have been kept on the books while new ones have been added.

Kirkpatrick said he hopes the commission will ask the Legislative Research Department in the Capitol to codify and update the existing laws for presentation to the General Assembly.

MORE FISHING SPOTS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—Six reservoirs will increase Kentucky's major fishing and recreational lake waters by more than 26,000 acres in the next six years, the state says.

GOV. WARREN E. HEARNES is shown presenting the Governor's Missouri State Fair Grand Champion ham trophy to E. M. Burger of Burger's Smokehouse, who exhibited this year's grand champion ham. The prize-winning ham was sold for $500 to Delton Houtchens, chairman of the state Democratic committee at the old-fashioned country ham breakfast and auction August 22. This is the 10th year for Burger's hams to be declared the Grand Champion hams. TOURISM RECEIVES NEW DIRECTION

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.--Transition in state government can be a hectic proposition, and the transfer of Missouri tourism programs from the Department of Commerce and Industrial Development to the newly created Department of Tourism is no exception.

The state's new tourism director, Will Davis, has been wearing two hats --- that of his present post as press secretary to Gov. Warren Hearnes, and his new one which "officially" begins Oct. 13.

But even before the members of the commission had been announced Davis had been obtaining offices in the old Montgomery Ward building in Jefferson City and planning for a transition period which he said will continue through Jan. 1.

Although there will be no fanfare when the commission assumes its duties for the first time, an intensive study will be underway to determine where the state has not met the needs of promoting its tourism industry, now estimated to be the second largest industry in Missouri.

New commission members were named last week by Gov. Hearnes, President Pro-Tem of the Missouri Senate John Joynt, and House Speaker James Godfrey. They include:

Lester Dill, Republican from Sullivan and owner of Meramec Caverns; Peter Herschend, Republican from Branson, owner of Silver Dollar City and Marble Cave and president of the South Ozark Lakes Assn.; Mark Todd, Democrat from Columbia and chairman of the Motel Association legislative committee; Jack Dickerson, Democrat from Camdenton and next president of the Lake of the Ozarks Assn.; Harold Koplar, Democrat from St. Louis, owner of the Chase Park Plaza, and a major stockholder in the Lodge of the Four Seasons on the Lake of the Ozarks.

Senate and House members include: Sen. John Joynt (D-St. Louis), Sen. Noel Cox (R-Ozark), Rep. Ruben A. Shapeler (D-Butler) and Rep. Robert E. Young (R-Cartharge).

PSC TO STUDY RAIL SERVICES

The Missouri Public Service Commission soon will hear arguments from representatives of the Missouri Pacific and the Norfolk and Western railroads to allow them to discontinue their passenger services in the state.

The commission grants the authority to operate passenger trains in the state and in turn must conduct hearings on petitions to discontinue such services.

Of the approximately 25 remaining railroad companies operating in Missouri, five have terminated all or a large part of their passenger services, with MoPac and the Norfolk and Western seeking to join the list.

GROUP TO STUDY STATE ELECTION LAWS

Missouri's first major study of election laws and procedures will begin Oct. 13 when, under new statutory authority, 15 legislators and private citizens will be named to an election law study commission.

Under a bill passed in the last session of the General Assembly, this commission is directed to update and clarify many of the state's antiquated laws governing elections, including the possible recommendation of electronic voting equipment for the state.

Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick, also a member of the commission and a major supporter of the bill which established it, said even today many election clerks and officials cannot be certain whether they have a right answer when they refer to election rules and regulations since many overlap and older ones dating back to the nineteenth century have been kept on the books while new ones have been added.

Kirkpatrick said he hopes the commission will ask the Legislative Research Department in the Capitol to codify and update the existing laws for presentation to the General Assembly.

To the Editor
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

The proposed fourth television network, to be operated by a federal corporation with "cooperation of the three national commercial networks", has been loosely termed "public TV." The public will not operate this network if it is formed; the public will only be required to pay for it. The Government, through the proposed Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will operate the network. Therefore, it will be "Government TV", not "public TV." This mis-labeling does not square with the Government's own "truth in packaging" proposals.

The basic objection to this scheme is constitutional. Nowhere in its enumeration of powers of the Federal Government does the Constitution permit such activity. The First Amendment specifically forbids "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press" and the Government cannot control a major segment of the press and a major forum for verbal expression without curtailing or abridging the freedom and rights of the people.

Constructively,

Probe Sought Into Whaley's Resignation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rep. Reynolds D. Rodgers, D-Kansas City, says he will continue to press for an investigation of the resignation of Dr. Randall M. Whaley as chancellor of the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

Rodgers said Dr. John C. Weaver, president of the University of Missouri, rejected his request for an official inquiry.

Dr. Whaley was relieved of his office by the M. U. Board of Curators Sept. 6, several days after he submitted his resignation to take effect Dec. 31. The curator's action followed Dr. Weaver's recommendation.

Rodgers asked Gov. Warren E. Hearnes for a probe. Weaver wrote to Rodgers that he had received a copy of the probe request. Weaver also wrote:

"This entire matter has been under the careful scrutiny of the nine-man public board of curators, and I can assure you that there is no need for further inquiry."

To the Editor
DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

The proposed fourth television network, to be operated by a federal corporation with "cooperation of the three national commercial networks", has been loosely termed "public TV." The public will not operate this network if it is formed; the public will only be required to pay for it. The Government, through the proposed Corporation for Public Broadcasting, will operate the network. Therefore, it will be "Government TV", not "public TV." This mis-labeling does not square with the Government's own "truth in packaging" proposals.

The basic objection to this scheme is constitutional. Nowhere in its enumeration of powers of the Federal Government does the Constitution permit such activity. The First Amendment specifically forbids "abridging the freedom of speech or of the press" and the Government cannot control a major segment of the press and a major forum for verbal expression without curtailing or abridging the freedom and rights of the people.

Constructively,
H. L. Hunt

Probe Sought Into Whaley's Resignation

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rep. Reynolds D. Rodgers, D-Kansas City, says he will continue to press for an investigation of the resignation of Dr. Randall M. Whaley as chancellor of the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

Rodgers said Dr. John C. Weaver, president of the University of Missouri, rejected his request for an official inquiry.

Dr. Whaley was relieved of his office by the M. U. Board of Curators Sept. 6, several days after he submitted his resignaton to take effect Dec. 31. The curator's action followed Dr. Weaver's recommendation.

Rodgers asked Gov. Warren E. Hearnes for a probe. Weaver wrote to Rodgers that he had received a copy of the probe request. Weaver also wrote:

"This entire matter has been under the careful scrutiny of the nine-man public board of curators, and I can assure you that there is no need for further inquiry."

Sculptured Art Puzzles New Yorkers

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a mousetrap!" "It's a pigeon coop!" "It's a Trojan Horse!" runs the refrain as mystified New Yorkers try to make sense out of a display of modern sculpture that has sprouted in parks and plazas.

The Whitney Shows what it Owns

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The summer show at the Whitney Museum of American Art is full of contrasts. It also offers some interesting examples of the fact yesterday's shocking innovations seem pretty tame beside today's.

"American Art of the 20th Century," on exhibit through Sept. 17, is one of the most comprehensive surveys of this theme ever shown — 228 paintings and watercolors and 86 sculptures and constructions.

This is the first time the Whitney has been able to display such a large segment of its permanent collection of more than 2,700 works, since this is the first time it has devoted all its galleries in the new building on Madison Avenue to its own collection. The exhibit space is 33,000 square feet, nearly three times that of its former home on West 54th Street.

One of the contrasts is between the Ash Can School (Sloan, Luks, Glackens, etc.) which caused quite a furore early in the century by portraying common subjects instead of academic, classical themes, and one of today's avant-garde artists, Edward Kienholz.

Kienholz' "The Wait," a recent acquisition, is one of those environmental shockers for which he is noted. It consists of a corner of a decrepit old sitting room (seedy furniture, a moth-eaten lamp) at the center of which sits a skeleton-like old woman with a cat in her lap. An old birdcage contains a real, live parakeet, the only nondecrepit element in the whole assemblage.

It is an intentional use of unlovely materials to create a feeling in the viewer — whether of revulsion, pity or disgust. But then, years ago people thought the Ashcan School was being crude.

CHARLES Burchfield's "Overhanging Cloud in July" — in the summer show at the Whitney Museum.

Another contrast is between the adherents of various "schools" and the lone wolves. An example of the latter is Charles Burchfield, who held his own while ignoring abstract expressionism, Pop, Op and everything else. There are two of his watercolors in the show, the better one being "Overhanging Cloud in July."

Edward Hopper is another example of a front-rank painter who followed his own course. Two of his oils and two of his watercolors are in the exhibit.

There was a time when abstract expressionism seemed to be a pretty wild innovation, but today it is old hat. The Whitney collection has a pretty thorough review of this school.

Among such items on display are Franz Kline's "Mahoning," Willem de Kooning's "Door to the River" and three oils by Adolph Gottlieb, including "The Frozen Sounds, Number 1." Other examples are Grace Hartigan's "Sweden," Philip Guston's "Dial" and Helen Frankenthaler's "Blue Territory." But Jackson Pollock isn't in the show.

Looking back to the 1920s there are such items as George Bellows' "Dempsey and Firpo," Charles DeMuth's "My Egypt" and three canvases by Arshile Gorky, including "The Artist and His Mother."

From the 1930s there are examples from such familiar figures as Raphael Soyer, Walt Kuhn and Reginald Marsh.

The sculptures include two important works by Jo Davidson — her Buddha-like figure of Gertrude Stein and her bust of Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, the museum's founder. But the range of sculpture also comes down to the present time, with its motorized constructions, such as Len Lye's "Fountain," a revolving spray of wire rods.

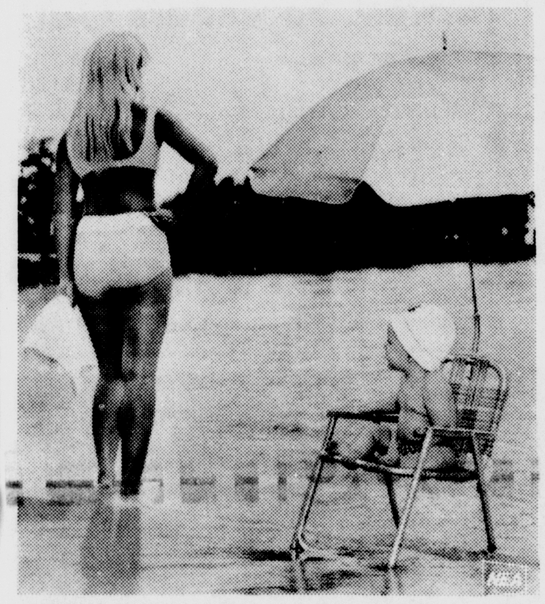

SCHOOL ENSEMBLE—Bright navy cotton corduroy is used on the horizontal for this perky coat with red simulated leather closings. Underneath, a shifty A-shape dress in red cotton knit completes the outfit. By Cinderella.

PILOT of the plane from which 18 persons accidentally jumped into Lake Erie while skydiving, Robert B. Karns, testified on the incident before the National Transportation Board.

STARTING EARLY on what is usually a hobby of somewhat older males, seven-month-old Ricky Callan indulges in girl-watching at a beach at Cypress Gardens, Fla.

COORDINATION'S THE KEY—An attractive kitchen-dining area is created by wise use of companion cotton fabrics and wallpaper. Unusual window treatment features tie-back printed curtains and sill-to-floor cafes in solid red cotton hung inside a double wooden lambrequin. Companion wallpaper is used on the adjacent wall and below the counter to give continuity to the room. Fabrics by Waverly.

AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION ABC

One in a series of messages to advertisers

How to win at shadow tag

As a youngster, perhaps you too enjoyed the game of shadow tag. What fun it was in the late afternoon, when shadows were long and easy to catch. As we recall, there was a way of winning at shadow tag. As long as the one who was "it" was kept between you and the sun, he never got close enough to your shadow for a tag. If the real you got caught, so did your shadow.

We got to thinking about this game the other day, during a discussion of circulation and how many different ways there are to "determine" the size of a circulation audience for advertising. You can multiply units of circulation by units of people and maybe you will get reader audience. Studies and surveys can produce age, sex, income, and all sorts of other factors which, when multiplied by units of circulation, might give you other kinds of audience figures.

No matter how it is figured, a circulation audience can never be more reliable than the circulation figures from which the shadow is projected. While the size and shape of the shadow changes in the light of varying points of interest, the child at tag and the circulation under study remains the same.

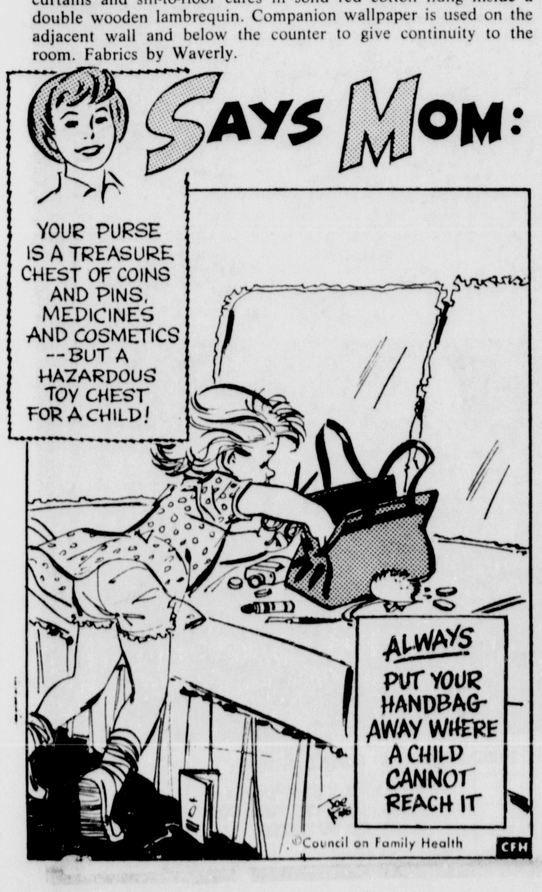

We believe it is our obligation, as a seller of the commodity of advertising space, to provide you with complete and accurate circulation figures. We believe in full disclosure of circulation facts, based on uniform standards, permitting close examination from any point of interest. We believe, further, that such facts and figures should come not from us or our agents, but from an independent, objective circulation measuring and reporting service.

That's why the Audit Bureau of Circulations was organized 50 years ago, and why more than 4,000 advertisers, advertising agencies, and publishers support this voluntary, self-regulatory effort today. That's why we are ABC members.

ABC FACTS THE BASIC MEASURES OF CIRCULATION VALUES

The Whitney Shows what it Owns

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

CHARLES Burchfield's "Overhanging Cloud in July" – in the summer show at the Whitney Museum.

NEW YORK (AP) – The summer show at the Whitney Museum of American Art is full of contrasts. It also offers some interesting examples of the fact yesterday's shocking innovations seem pretty tame beside today's.

"American Art of the 20th Century," on exhibit through Sept. 17, is one of the most comprehensive surveys of this theme ever shown – 228 paintings and watercolors and 86 sculptures and constructions.

This is the first time the Whitney has been able to display such a large segment of its permanent collection of more than 2,700 works, since this is the first time it has devoted all its galleries in the new building on Madison Avenue to its own collection. The exhibit space is 33,000 square feet, nearly three times that of its former home on West 54th Street.

One of the contrasts is between the Ash Can School (Sloan, Luks, Glackens, etc.) which caused quite a furore early in the century by portraying common subjects instead of academic, classical themes, and one of today's avant-garde artists, Edward Kienholz.

Kienholz' "The Wait," a recent acquisition, is one of those environmental shockers for which he is noted. It consists of a corner of a decrepit old sitting room (seedy furniture, a moth-eaten lamp) at the center of which sits a skeleton-like old woman with a cat in her lap. An old birdcage contains a real, live parakeet, the only nondecrepit element in the whole assemblage.

It is an intentional use of unlovely materials to create a feeling in the viewer – whether of revulsion, pity or disgust. But then, years ago people thought the Ashcan School was being crude.

Another contrast is between the adherents of various "schools" and the lone wolves. An example of the latter is Charles Burchfield, who held his own while ignoring abstract expressionism, Pop, Op and everything else. There are two of his watercolors in the show, the better one being "Overhanging Cloud in July."

Edward Hopper is another example of a front-rank painter who followed his own course. Two of his oils and two of his watercolors are in the exhibit.

There was a time when abstract expressionism seemed to be a pretty wild innovation, but today it is old hat. The Whitney collection has a pretty thorough review of this school.

Among such items on display are Franz Kline's "Mahoning," Willem de Kooning's "Door to the River" and three oils by Adolph Gottlieb, including "The Frozen Sounds, Number 1." Other examples are Grace Hartigan's "Sweden," Philip Guston's "Dial" and Helen Frankenthaler's "Blue Territory." But Jackson Pollock isn't in the show.

Looking back to the 1920s there are such items as George Bellows' "Dempsey and Firpo," Charles DeMuth's "My Egypt" and three canvases by Arshile Gorky, including "The Artist and His Mother."

From the 1930s there are examples from such familiar figures as Raphael Soyer, Walt Kuhn and Reginald Marsh.

The sculptures include two important works by Jo Davidson – her Buddha-like figure of Gertrude Stein and her bust of Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney, the museum's founder. But the range of sculpture also comes down to the present time, with its motorized constructions, such as Len Lye's "Fountain," a revolving spray of wire rods.

SCHOOL ENSEMBLE—Bright navy cotton corduroy is used on the horizontal for this perky coat with red simulated leather closings. Underneath, a shifty A-shape dress in red cotton knit completes the outfit. By Cinderella.

PILOT of the plane from which 18 persons accidentally jumped into Lake Erie while skydiving, Robert B. Karns, testified on the incident before the National Transportation Board.

STARTING EARLY on what is usually a hobby of somewhat older males, seven-month-old Ricky Callan indulges in girl-watching at a beach at Cypress Gardens, Fla.

COORDINATION'S THE KEY—An attractive kitchen-dining area is created by wise use of companion cotton fabrics and wallpaper. Unusual window treatment features tie-back printed curtains and sill-to-floor cafes in solid red cotton hung inside a double wooden lambrequin. Companion wallpaper is used on the adjacent wall and below the counter to give continuity to the room. Fabrics by Waverly.

How to win at shadow tag

As a youngster, perhaps you too enjoyed the game of shadow tag. What fun it was in the late afternoon, when shadows were long and easy to catch. As we recall, there was a way of winning at shadow tag. As long as the one who was "it" was kept between you and the sun, he never got close enough to your shadow for a tag. If the real you got caught, so did your shadow.

We got to thinking about this game the other day, during a discussion of circulation and how many different ways there are to "determine" the size of a circulation audience for advertising. You can multiply units of circulation by units of people and maybe you will get reader audience. Studies and surveys can produce age, sex, income, and all sorts of other factors which, when multiplied by units of circulation, might give you other kinds of audience figures.

No matter how it is figured, a circulation audience can never be more reliable than the circulation figures from which the shadow is projected. While the size and shape of the shadow changes in the light of varying points of interest, the child at tag and the circulation under study remains the same.

We believe it is our obligation, as a seller of the commodity of advertising space, to provide you with complete and accurate circulation figures. We believe in full disclosure of circulation facts, based on uniform standards, permitting close examination from any point of interest. We believe, further, that such facts and figures should come not from us or our agents, but from an independent, objective circulation measuring and reporting service.

That's why the Audit Bureau of Circulations was organized 50 years ago, and why more than 4,000 advertisers, advertising agencies, and publishers support this voluntary, self-regulatory effort today. That's why we are ABC members.

Come to think of it, we never were much good at shadow tag. Just ask to see a copy of our latest ABC report — it will let you tag the real us.

Man, 80, Has Right to Kick up His Heels

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of an 80-year-old man who buried his wife 11 years ago, and is now going steady with a lady friend?

Gramps was always a person who saved his money. Suddenly he has taken to buying sports jackets and shoes with buckles instead of laces. He gets the best seats to the concerts and plays and he never misses a football or a basketball game. He didn't do any of these things 40 years ago when it would have made some sense.

I am a relative and am very concerned about his foolishness. How can we get it across to Gramps that he should be saving his money for his old age so in case he becomes ill and incapacitated he will not be burden to his family? Thank you. --- WORRIED FAMILY

Dear Family: Sorry, but I am not going to tell a man who is 80 to save money for his old age. It sounds as if Gramps is just beginning to get a kick out of life and I say hooray for him. If you want to do him a favor, make sure he has his supplemental medicare paid up and tell him to enjoy himself.

Dear Ann Landers: When I was 13 I hated my mother. Almost all my girl friends were allowed to date, but I had to wait till I got into the 10th grade! I was humiliated and ashamed. I accused her of trying to keep me a baby all my life. We had some terrible arguments but I couldn't get her to budge.

I am 15 now and just had my third date. What happened last night made me realize that my mother was a lot smarter than I was and I thank the good Lord she didn't let me grind her down.

Rick was the dreamiest, smoothest talking guy I'd ever met in my whole life. It was supposed to be a double date but at the last minute we wound up alone. I'm sure he faked me out. Rick said he wanted to get to know the real me and going to a movie would be a waste of time so he drove directly to a secluded spot off the main highway and we parked.

Rick handed me a line you could hang a two-weeks' wash on. He said I was the girl he had been looking for all his life --- that I was wise beyond my years, yet so innocent and fresh. He wanted me to learn about life and love from HIM --- not from some inexperienced clod who might scar me emotionally and make me afraid of sex for the rest of my life.

I thanked him for being so thoughtful and considerate and told him it was real noble of him but I wasn't buying. I also told him if he didn't keep his big paws off me I might have to loosen a few of his teeth to prove I wasn't kidding.

I am proud of the way I handled that character and now I can laugh about it. I am also certain that two years ago I would have been no match for him. I am lucky I have a mom who stuck to her guns. Just sign me --- A GRATEFUL DAUGHTER

Dear Daughter: Three cheers for you and four cheers for your mother. Those super salesmen with Roman hands and Russian impulses can be mighty dangerous company. I hope your letter will give the eager 13-year-olds across the country something to think about.

Vacation without Pay Merits Jobless Aid

Buster landed a swell job in Dinklemier's shoe factory and got an unexpected boot two months later. Under a labor-management contract, Mr. Dinklemier had the right to allocate vacations amongst his employees as he saw fit. And, he saw fit to insist that Buster take a vacation. Under normal circumstances, this would have been fine with Buster, but, since he lacked seniority to be entitled to a vacation with pay, he had to go empty pocketed.

Hurrying to the nearest unemployment office, busted Buster demanded unemployment benefits.

"Buy you're not unemployed," he was told. "You've got a job and a pretty good one."

"Some job!" was Buster's answer. "I'm employed, but I'm not working and I'm not getting paid. To hold such a marvelous job, you've got to be independently wealthy. Since I'm not, I'm entitled to unemployment benefits."

When it was refused, Buster took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Buster to collect unemployment benefits while he's on vacation?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that when an employee is forced to take a vacation without pay under a labor - management contract he is deemed to be involuntarily and totally unemployed so as to entitle him to unemployment benefits for the duration of his "vacation."

Life on Atlantic More Serene than on River

CAPE GIRARDEAU - A Cleveland, Ohio, newspaperman who sailed the Atlantic Ocean in 13 1/2-foot "Tinkerbelle" said during a Cape Girardeau stop that he prefers the Atlantic to the Mississippi river.

"There are just too many things to watch at once," explained Robert Manry who chose a boat twice as long as "Tinkerbell" for his cruise down the Mississippi to New Orleans, La., and on to the Bahamas.

He said during his 78-day journey to England in 1965, he just headed "Tinkerbelle" in the right direction and let the wind do the rest.

However, on the Mississippi there is little wind but much barge traffic plus sandbars to watch. "It can get a little dangerous at times," he added.

Manry's lattest trip comes some two years after he became the first man believed to ever sail the Atlantic in that small a boat.

The newsman has brought along his family, including his wife, Virginia, two children, a German Shepherd dog and a cat.

The Manrys live on their boat named "Curlew" ("Tinkerbelle" is now in a museum) which covers about 75 miles a day at approximately nine miles per hour. It is powered by a 30-horsepower inboard motor.

All four Manrys are keeping diaries and once they return home plan to write a book on their experiences. Manry has published a book on his trans-Atlantic trip.

HAIR OF THE DOG FOR COATS

LISBON (AP) — "Is your coat made out of dog hair?"

That's not an uncommon question in Lisbon, where the hair of dead mongrels is often used for garments. But a small town in the Portuguese African territory of Mozambique appears to have gone Lisbon one better.

Some people were selecting their coats while the dogs were still wearing them on the streets of the small southern village of Inhambane. The dogs were shot and skinned on the spot — by village employes paid to get rid of dogs.

The town is infested with them, according to the Mozambique newspaper Noticias.

Several of the more refined villagers protested to municipal authorities, however, and the practice was stopped. From now on, dogs will be picked up and held for three days. They will then be painlessly killed—and skinned—if no one claims them.

This is the practice followed here, where coats and ladies' winter hats made out of the best dog hair bring good prices.

Women, Volunteer Organizations Called Great Untapped Resources

COLUMBIA -- A rapidly moving world, changing values, social problems and concern for the destiny of mankind are calling for the efforts of two great untapped resources -- women and voluntary organizations.

Mrs. Warren Hearnes, wife of the Missouri Governor, in her luncheon address, rejected the clinches about the chauffeuring mother and the home-neglecting clubwoman. "They do not accurately portray the great majority of women and they do not accurately show the real nature of the modern woman's involvement in her world."

She cited the large number of women retraining to enter teaching, the leadership of women in fornation of 52 local art councils in the state and women's increased activities in politics as delegates and candidates.

Woman's fulfillment, she concluded, "lies in her going out to others, not turning in on herself."

But the two-day seminar on social change and new directions in continuing education for women at the University of Missouri, Columbia, received a suggestion that women aren't carrying their load.

"Women have not entered into full participation in society," said Dr. Francena Miller, general director of the American Association of University Women.

"Almost 40 per cent of girls with college ability do not enroll. Of those who do, half drop out before they finish. A static 16 to 18 percent continue for master's degrees, the same level as in World War II. Numbers receiving doctor of philosophy degrees have changed little.

"Two-thirds are in clerical, operative or service positions," she continued. "Only 14 per cent are in professional technical rolles."

"Even the most capable settle for middle-level occupations which demand less than their total talent."

Obstacles, of course, are problems of competent homemaking services and child care, difficulty of returning to college, discrimination and lack of motivation.

Other speakers, however, took a broader view.

It is the needs of society that are stirring women in the search to be effective, John Anthony Brown, president of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, said. Women are examining themselves, their role and their home--all affected by a rapidly changing world calling for adjustment by all. Women have a contribution to make that is unique because they are women.

The mature women yearns for fulfillment and new challenging educational programs need to be set up that allow her to follow those interests and concerns she is distinctly fitted to--with the quality of life, with a humanistic life and with a world whose problems are demanding her concern and her active paticipation.

LEADERS IN A SEMINAR on continuing education for women at the University of Missouri in Columbia, are, from left, Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, University vice president for extension; Mrs. Warren Hearnes, wife of Missouri's governor; and Mrs. John C. Weaver, wife of the University president.

According to Dr. Miller, women have a special competence in meeting human needs and the growing needs of not only those close to us but in the destiny of mankind. Social unrest, changing values are calling for her resources. Woman is seeking expression and satisfaction above her ordinary household duties. Flexible educational programs need developing for her special life style and voluntary organizations are a channel to reach her individually. These organizations offer the woman the chance to mold her opinion into active force.

Mrs. John C. Weaver, wife of the University president, voiced optimism in her comments on education. She said that these days women are accepting their responsiblities and training for them. In a fast moving world, a life getting more complex, ones hope of keeping up is in continuing education. She said women are working harder and are serious about their responsibilities. Women are returning to education to close the broadening gap between generations.

Mrs. Clarissa Start Davidson, feature writer and columnist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, advised how voluntary organizations can best serve the woman. She said that women need continuing education for all kinds of reasons -- to get out of the cabin, to earn a living, to feel necessary, to expand cultural horizons. There are some who need education not just continuing education. Voluntary organizations can help by providing notivation, publicising work opportunities, not necessarily those to fill time but those where the woman feels needed. The group that needs education should be sought out individually and the opportunity must be brought to them.

She suggested that voluntary organizations provide information about educational avenues, most of all, adopt a positive point of view of continuing education for all women.

Chamber Sets Goal of 50 New Members

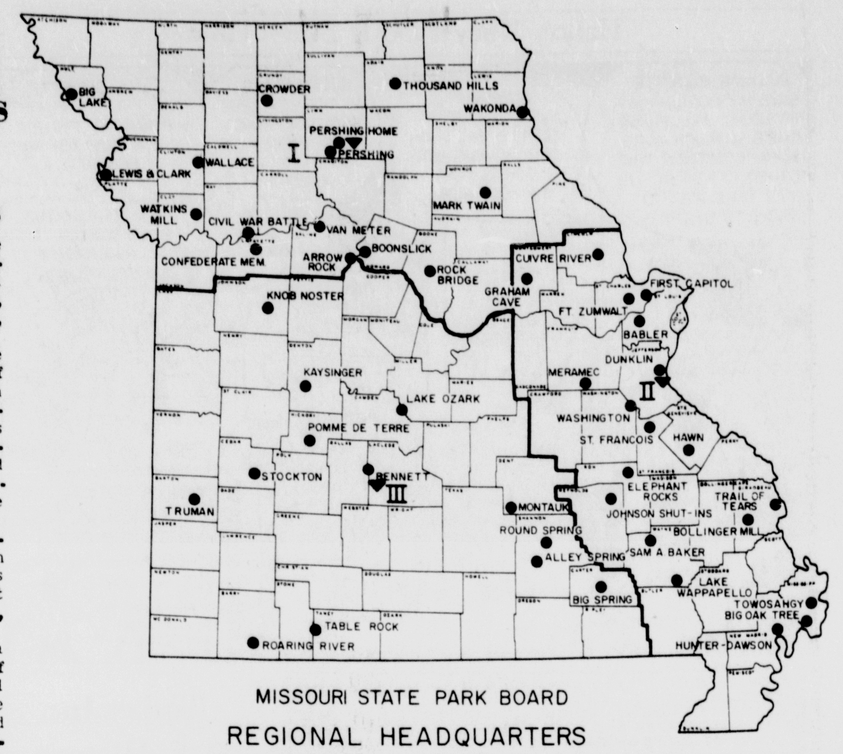

About 30 members of the Chamber of Commerce are expected to participate in the annual membership drive Tuesday, Richard Pinkerton, manager, said.

The chamber operates on the slogan "Hire Your Chamber of Commerce Office," Pinkerton noted. The slogan is appropriate, because the chamber works to increase business and industry, thus generate growth and stimulating economic enterprise in the community, he added.

The chamber now has a membership of 235. The minimum goal set for the drive Tuesday is 50 new members. It is hoped that the membership will reach 300, Pinkerton said.

The drive will start with a 7:30 a.m. breakfast meeting of the drive workers at the El Capri Restuarant. Prospective member cards will be distributed at the meeting and an explanation will be made of the fair share policy of membership expense.

Four factors are considered for membership of firms: Number of employes, square footage of building, ownership of property, and gross income of business.

Women, Volunteer Organizations Called Great Untapped Resources

COLUMBIA -- A rapidly moving world, changing values, social problems and concern for the destiny of mankind are calling for the efforts of two great untapped resources -- women and voluntary organizations.

Mrs. Warren Hearnes, wife of the Missouri Governor, in her luncheon address, rejected the clinches about the chauffeuring mother and the home-neglecting clubwoman. "They do not accurately portray the great majority of women and they do not accurately show the real nature of the modern woman's involvement in her world."

She cited the large number of women retraining to enter teaching, the leadership of women in fornation of 52 local art councils in the state and women's increased activities in politics as delegates and candidates.

Woman's fulfillment, she concluded, "lies in her going out to others, not turning in on herself."

But the two-day seminar on social change and new directions in continuing education for women at the University of Missouri, Columbia, received a suggestion that women aren't carrying their load.

"Women have not entered into full participation in society," said Dr. Francena Miller, general director of the American Association of University Women.

"Almost 40 per cent of girls with college ability do not enroll. Of those who do, half drop out before they finish. A static 16 to 18 percent continue for master's degrees, the same level as in World War II. Numbers receiving doctor of philosophy degrees have changed little.

"Two-thirds are in clerical, operative or service positions," she continued. "Only 14 per cent are in professional technical rolles."

"Even the most capable settle for middle-level occupations which demand less than their total talent."

Obstacles, of course, are problems of competent homemaking services and child care, difficulty of returning to college, discrimination and lack of motivation.

Other speakers, however, took a broader view.

It is the needs of society that are stirring women in the search to be effective, John Anthony Brown, president of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, said. Women are examining themselves, their role and their home--all affected by a rapidly changing world calling for adjustment by all. Women have a contribution to make that is unique because they are women.

The mature women yearns for fulfillment and new challenging educational programs need to be set up that allow her to follow those interests and concerns she is distinctly fitted to--with the quality of life, with a humanistic life and with a world whose problems are demanding her concern and her active paticipation.

LEADERS IN A SEMINAR on continuing education for women at the University of Missouri in Columbia, are, from left, Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, University vice president for extension; Mrs. Warren Hearnes, wife of Missouri's governor; and Mrs. John C. Weaver, wife of the University president.

According to Dr. Miller, women have a special competence in meeting human needs and the growing needs of not only those close to us but in the destiny of mankind. Social unrest, changing values are calling for her resources. Woman is seeking expression and satisfaction above her ordinary household duties. Flexible educational programs need developing for her special life style and voluntary organizations are a channel to reach her individually. These organizations offer the woman the chance to mold her opinion into active force.

Mrs. John C. Weaver, wife of the University president, voiced optimism in her comments on education. She said that these days women are accepting their responsibilities and training for them. In a fast moving world, a life getting more complex, ones hope of keeping up is in continuing education. She said women are working harder and are serious about their responsibilities. Women are returning to education to close the broadening gap between generations.

Mrs. Clarissa Start Davidson, feature writer and columnist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, advised how voluntary organizations can best serve the woman. She said that women need continuing education for all kinds of reasons -- to get out of the cabin, to earn a living, to feel necessary, to expand cultural horizons. There are some who need education not just continuing education. Voluntary organizations can help by providing notivation, publicising work opportunities, not necessarily those to fill time but those where the woman feels needed. The group that needs education should be sought out individually and the opportunity must be brought to them.

She suggested that voluntary organizations provide information about educational avenues, most of all, adopt a positive point of view of continuing education for all women.
